CHARLES H. COLE
NAMED BY GOVERNOR DOUGLAS AS HEAD POLICE BOARD

COL. CHARLES H. COLE, JR., NAMED TO-DAY AS POLICE BOARD HEAD.

Member of Governor's Staff Succeeds Commissioner Curtis—Will Replace Judge Emmons as Official Head of Police Force. Dr. MacDonald Named as Medical Examiner

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles H. Cole, Jr., inspector-general of rifle practice on Governor Douglas's staff, was to-day appointed chairman of the Boston Board of Police to succeed Commissioner Charles P. Curtis, whose term expires May 1.

In the event of confirmation of the appointment by the Governor's Council, Colonel Cole will assume the chairmanship of the Board of Police, Judge Emmons becoming a commissioner. The chairmanship cannot be changed by the Governor's Council.

Other important nominations were sent to the council by Governor Douglas to-day, as follows:

Dr. William G. MacDonald of Boston, medical examiner of Suffolk County, to succeed Dr. William H. Draper, whose term expires June 30.

Edwin B. Haskell of Newton, Metropolitan Park Commissioner.

Lawrence S. James of Boston, assistant inspector of gas and gas meters.

Colonel Cole's appointment was made after an all-day conference at the State House between Governor Douglas and the friends of the various candidates, who saw the Governor one after the other.

Democratic State leaders who learned that Cole was likely to be appointed hastened to the State House in opposition. Their candidate was Salem D. Charles.

General Charles W. Bartlett and others, who favored Deputy Superintendent of Police Hanson for the office, saw the Governor in his behalf.

The Governor, however, adhered to his original intention and appointed Colonel Cole. The chairmanship carries with it a salary of $4,500 per year.

Confirmation Assured.

By nominating Colonel Charles H. Cole, Governor Douglas settled an important matter that has kept the politicians guessing ever since his election last November. Under the rules of the Executive Council the nomination will lie over until the next meeting, but there is not the slightest doubt of the confirmation of the Governor's choice.

Members of the council, who were sounded on the question to-day, said that, while it would be improper to discuss the nomination for publication, it was not at all probable that there would be objection to the confirmation of Colonel Cole.

The selection of Colonel Cole is distinctly the work of the Governor himself. The Governor picked his man and named him.

Early to-day there was a grand rally of the friends of Street Commissioner Salem D. Charles, who urged his nomination on the Governor.

Collins in Conference.

The first caller at the office of Governor Douglas to-day was Mayor Collins. They were closeted for more than an hour and talked over the situation in all its detail. The Governor asked the Mayor for his advice before informing him that, in his opinion, Colonel Cole would make a good police commissioner. The Mayor told the Governor that he had no desire to disturb him in the matter and said he realized that the appointment was an extremely delicate proposition.

The Mayor told the Governor of the men who were preferable to the Boston leaders, and went into the merits of the case from all its aspects. After the conference the Mayor said he was not at liberty to say what the result or the nature of the conversation with the Governor had been, but would not deny that the question of the appointment of a police commissioner had been considered.

After the Mayor had departed General Charles W. Bartlett of the Governor's staff was in conference with the Governor for some time. It was said that he did not present the name of any candidate and that the rumors to the effect that he was interested in promoting the candidacy of Deputy Superintendent of Police Hanson were unfounded. Soon after the going of General Bartlett Congressman William S. McNary appeared on the scene and was in conference with the Governor for half an hour. Mr. McNary was decidedly reticent after the interview.

Fight Hard for Charles.

In the meantime the telephone had been busy and the Governor and his private secretary were kept busy explaining so far as they deemed advisable, the status of the contest for the appointment of Police Commissioner. The friends of Street Commissioner Charles kept up the fight until nearly 1 o'clock, and then left the field with little hope that their man would cross the line a winner. When the Governor left his office for luncheon at 12:30 it was definitely announced that the nomination of the new commissioner would be sent to the council at 2:30.

Colonel Cole, who has been nominated for police commissioner, is a member of the Governor's staff as inspector-general of rifle practice and is the Governor's choice for chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee. His appointment will be by the means of consolidating the middle on the State Committee as he will not accept appointment on the Executive Committee under the

HOSTILE FLEETS SAID TO HAVE MET OFF JAVA COAST—REPORT UNCONFIRMED

LONDON, April 12.—London hears a report from Amsterdam that three Russian ships have been sunk in an engagement with the Japanese near Java.

This is separate and distinct from the reported battle now raging between the Russians and Japanese off the Anambas Islands, east coast of the Malay Peninsula.

More importance is attached to the report of the fight near Java than to the other, among naval experts here. St. Petersburg had received information earlier to-day that a Japanese scouting squadron had been sighted off Lisbon, British Honduras, which is near Java. It is regarded as possible that this squadron has met a similar scouting squadron from the Russian fleet, and has given battle.

Reports of the battle off Anambas Islands reach London, by way of Amsterdam, where the newspaper Handelsblad prints the following dispatch from its correspondent at Batavia, Java:

"A battle is in progress between Japanese and Russian vessels near the Anambas Islands, east of Malay Peninsula.

"Details regarding the reported action are lacking.

If there is a fight off the Anambas, which are 200 miles northeast of Singapore, it is believed here that it was precipitated by the Japanese flying squadron.

Flying Squadron Offers Battle.

It is known that Admiral Togo has divided the Japanese fleet into three sections, a flying squadron, consisting of the fastest cruisers in his fleet, the main body, consisting of the heavier and more effective ships of war in his command, and a reserve fleet. Latest reports before the report of the beginning of a battle stated that the Japanese flying squadron had gone out in search for the Russians, and that it might attack.

All doubt as to the strength of the fleet which passed Singapore and which is now supposed to be lying intact, at the Anambas Islands, was dissipated to-day by a Lloyd's dispatch from Singapore. Lloyd's is the authority on naval affairs. This dispatch says:

"The Russian fleet which passed Singapore on Saturday consisted of seven battleships, two armored cruisers, five unarmored cruisers, three converted cruisers, seven destroyers, seventeen steamers, one hospital ship and one tug."

Reports as to the number of battleships in the fleet have been contradictory. A report to the Reuter Telegram Company said that two battleships were to the squadron, and this led to the belief that Admiral Rojestensky with the fleet of fifteen vessels had taken some other passage into the China Sea.

The dispatch to-day in Lloyd's contradicts that of Reuter's message. The Japanese embassy is inclined to believe that the dispatch to Lloyd's is correct and the Reuter message wrong.

TOGO READY TO STRIKE BLOW.

Should it prove true that a battle is now raging at the Anambas Islands it seems probable that the two Japanese cruisers, previously reported bound South, Idzumi and Iwate, Admiral Saigon or Singapore in order to intercept the Russian movement of the main fleet.

Preventing at this report of the battle there had been no news of the main Japanese squadron. Togo has remained silent on the situation, and while Tokio is still silent in regard to the report of a battle now raging, Japanese officials in London and on the Continent do not deny that such a fight is possible.

Tokio has stated, however, that Togo's

SOLDIERS FIELD, April 12.—On a soggy field the Crimson diamond exponents and the University of Syracuse nine got into action for their game, which was postponed from yesterday. Harvard expected to win from the New York State boys as easily as they disposed of the Vermonters and Trinity, and this last game before going on the annual trip was wanted badly, so as to give a good start on the eve of departure.

Both teams were in fine condition to put up the best grade of ball culture, but the treacherous surface of the field made the playing uncertain.

Harvard presented the same lineup that was played in the field since the schedule opened, with Taylor and Coburn taking turns in the box.

LOWELL CANAL VICTIM IS NOT ALICE DUCKER

Girl Missing From This City Sailed for England on March 14.

THE MYSTERY IS UNSOLVED

The belief that Alice Ducker of No. 604 Massachusetts avenue, this city, was the young girl found dead in the canal at Lowell, was short lived to-day. Alby Ducker went to England with the family of the Rev. Dr. Chapman of No. 1,547 Centre street, Newton Centre, on March 14, and since that time has been heard from by Dr. Chapman.

Mrs. Ducker, fearing that her daughter had not sailed with the Chapman family because of a letter received after the boat had sailed, wrote to Undertaker O'Donnell in Lowell, asking for a description of the body and expressing confidence that it was her daughter. Dr. Chapman, however, says he knows that Alice Ducker went abroad, and since she has been mentioned in letters to him from his family.

This leaves the mystery surrounding the girl shrine in the canal as deep as ever. It is believed that there was foul play, and additional evidence was given to the police on this point to-day by Mr. and Mrs. Miles of Lowell, who hired servants, and later saw a hole through the ice where a body might have been thrown.

HEARD WOMAN'S SCREAM.

Information given to the police to-day by Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Miles of No. 227 Pawtucket street, Lowell, is to the effect that two or three weeks ago, the last time the canal was frozen over, they heard a scream, evidently that of a woman, late at night. Next day they found a hole in the ice of the canal.

These facts were reported to the police at that time and Policeman John Buchanan made an investigation. He failed, however, to find anything save some tracks on the bank of the canal. These facts were not connected with the case until to-day, as Mr. and Mrs. Miles live some two-thirds of a mile above the place where the body was found. It is possible, however, that the body was taken down the canal by the surge of the waters.

CRIGER MAY NOT PLAY WITH CHAMPS FRIDAY

GREAT CATCHER WILL HAVE TO REST ON ACCOUNT OF INJURED LEG.

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL,
Boston American staff Correspondent with American League Champion Team.

CINCINNATI, April 12.—Lou Criger, the Champs' great catcher, was at the hotel when Collins's men arrived here this morning. Criger looked the picture of health, and all the players congratulated him on his appearance.

"I am feeling great," said Lou to his comrades, "but I have a bad leg. At Hot Springs, while I was batting up flies, I wrenched it. By careful nursing I managed to get it so that I thought everything was all right. I returned to Elkhart, Ind., no home, to spend a few days there before joining the team here. Last Sunday the day was fine, and a lot of us went out to the ball park to have some fun, and while there I stepped into a small hole, and my leg went back on me again."

The chances are greatly against Criger's catching the opening game on Friday. He will simply have to give his leg a good rest. This is the first piece of real bad luck the Champs have had this year.

The weather to-day is cool and sunny.

Umpires—Billy Hart of the American Association.

Rain has fallen here for two days, and yesterday's contest between the Reds and Leaders (Cleveland Blues, had to be called off. There promises to be a very big crowd across the Ohio River to-day to see the Boston boys play the Reds this afternoon.

President John I. Taylor arrived in Cincinnati this morning. He will see the game to-day and go with the team to Philadelphia for the opening contest.

President Ban Johnson of the American League came over from Chicago to see Mr. Taylor, and he will go East to-night with the Boston team for the opening game.

President Herrmann of the Cincinnati club dined the officials of the Boston club and the visiting newspaper men at the St. Nicholas Hotel at noon.

MEAT PRICES FORCED UP 5 CENTS A POUND TO-DAY

Trust Raises Rates on the Cheaper Cuts of Beef, Pork and Lamb

The retail price of meat advanced to-day in Boston from 4 to 5 cents a pound. Retailers to-day told their customers that the packers are demanding more for their products, thus forcing up the retail price. The packers supplying the local retailers are members of the Beef Trust.

The price on the medium grades of beef, pork and lamb received the greatest advance. Beef was advanced from 4 to 5 cents a pound, pork 5 cents and lamb 3 cents. Pork is to-day selling for 16 cents a pound, the highest price demanded in years.

The price of the fancy cuts of all of these meats is not affected by the increase, the prices of the less desirable parts of the meat alone being increased.

How the Price of Meat Went Up in Boston

Sirloin of beef	20c-22c	24c-26c	4c
Beef rump	21c-23c	25c-28c	4c-5c
Round of beef	15c-18c	18c-22c	3c-4c
Pork	11c	16c	5c
Lamb	12c-15c	17c-20c	5c

Working people are thus affected most by to-day's increase, dealers say. No lowering of prices is in sight until the packers give the word by lowering the wholesale price of their meats. The packers will make no statement through their local offices.

fleet is thoroughly prepared for an engagement, and it was from there that the towns of the division of his fleet into three parts was made, based upon plans of Togo's battle plans, the correspondent of the Express says.

"He has divided his fleet into three squadrons, flying, noiselessly, like birds, each of which is manned by experienced officers, and will open the fighting; the main squadron, made up of most of the battleships and armored cruisers, is to follow into action; the reserve squadron, consisting of the remaining battleships and cruisers, will complete the attack, if necessary, and guard against any attack in the rear."

THE CZAR'S MESSAGE.

Paris dispatches give an account of the audience which determined the dispatch of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet from Madagascar. The Admiral telegraphed to St. Petersburg demanding orders, and stating that he couldn't remain forever at Madagascar, that his vessels were becoming foul and that in time he would soon be unable to go in any direction.

The dispatches say the Minister of Marine handed the telegram to the Czar, who read it, and then wrote the following line to the Admiral:

"Go, God with you, to save Russia and to preserve for her her place in the waters of the world."

Dispatches from Manila state that a Japanese warship was signted between the islands of Mindanao and Basilan. The Japanese have closed the port of Sorsogon, the northern end of Formosa, probably intending to use it as a base for Togo's fleet.

FRENCH WARSHIPS CATCH WIRELESS BY TOGO'S BATTLESHIPS

SAIGON, French Cochin China, April 12.—The French cruiser Descartes and five torpedo boats are now at Touran, south near Cape St. Jaques. The Descartes is fitted with the wireless telegraph apparatus and has recorded several messages in an unknown code which she could not decipher.

It is stated that the gunboats Acheron and Sfax will leave Saigon together to protect the neutrality of Siamese waters.

Japanese warships are cruising along the coast of China in search of coal. The Russians from provisioning or securing coal.

SCENE OF RUMORED NAVAL BATTLE

Showing the rendezvous of the Russian Baltic fleet, where the Japanese under Togo are reported to have clashed with their fos, details of which battle have not yet been received. The reported sinking of three Russian ships was 600 miles south, off the Java coast.

NAVAL FIGHT WILL DECIDE WAR--DEWEY

WASHINGTON, April 12.—"Whether Russia or Japan shall be the victor in the Far East war depends, in my opinion, upon the result of the battle about to occur between the fleets of Admiral Rojestvensky and Admiral Togo," said Admiral George Dewey, in speaking of the present struggle.

"If Togo is beaten," he continued, "all the money and the lives that have been spent by his country in Manchuria will be for nothing. The Russians in command of the sea, would cut off overwhelming forces between Japan and the mainland, and the Japanese army in Manchuria would be powerless."

Admiral Dewey has been following the naval campaign with intense interest, not only because its result is that in which he gained his renowned victory, but because of lessons which he is furnishing and which will be of the greatest value in the developing of American fleets. During the war with Spain, Admiral Dewey was placed in much the same position as Togo.

"Think what Japan would give for two or three battleships at this critical moment," exclaimed the Admiral. "Her national safety would be assured. This is the thing we should take to heart. We have done much in a military way to protect ourselves. What we must do now is the complete arming of ourselves upon the sea."

JAPANESE MOVING ON VLADIVOSTOK

ST. PETERSBURG, April 12.—Dispatches from Gunshu Pass, Manchuria, say that the Japanese have landed 30,000 men at Dalny, and that it is reported that six additional divisions are landing in Japan to operate against Vladivostok and Saghalien Island.

Armies under Generals Kawamura and Nogi are reported moving to the northeast to cut off the Russian communication with Vladivostok. This information has been received by General Linevitch from a fifth dived native horseman fired on Russian troops at the village of Tsaotun. The Manchurian militia are said to be taking the field on the side of the Japanese in the Hun River. The leader, Fulingo, has been appointed governor of the district of Liaoyuan, but a force of Chinese regulars is stationed along the frontier to compel him with the object of preserving neutrality.

Part of the Fifth Siberian regiment, which was cut off at Mukden, has arrived at Kirin, having penetrated the Japanese lines. The Japanese are landing troops at Siuniuru and Fakuman, and are surveying the road from Fakuman southward, also bridging the Hun River to Kaupiusan and Sintzuntun, where their commissariat is located.

PALACE IN PLOT THAT ENDED LIFE OF THE GRAND DUKE

MOSCOW, April 12.—There is a curious report in regard to the recent assassination of the Grand Duke Sergius that implicates certain prominent persons in the palace.

The names of these alleged conspirators, it divulged, it is stated, would create a panic throughout the whole of Russian aristocracy, as it would show the murderers of the grand duke to be people who are believed by revolutionary sentiments.

It is stated that the government does not intend to place the actual assassin of Sergius on trial, fearing there would be a public revelation of the whole plot.

DEMAND PROTECTION AGAINST INCENDIARY

GENERAL MANAGER BARR, OF THE B. & M., TO CONFER WITH FIRE COMMISSIONER.

Charlestown's firebug, who has destroyed over $5,000,000 worth of property, tried to start another conflagration at the Boston tunnel docks during the night and escaped arrest, although nearly thirty watchmen and police were patrolling the vicinity of No. 44 Water street where the latest of a long series of incendiary fires was set.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has been the heaviest loser. Its offices are burned out and will take strenuous action. General Manager Frank Barr has made an appointment with Fire Commissioner Webber. He wants to learn from the head of the fire department what further steps can be taken to protect Hoosac Tunnel docks and if any fresh clue can be had to catch the incendiary when he again applies the torch. Mr. Barr also called the head of the department on the docks to discuss the situation.

Work of Pyromaniac.

"I think the fires were set by a pyromaniac," said Mr. Barr to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "I do not believe he is a person with a grudge against the Boston & Maine, because a number of fires were set beyond railroad property. That the outside fires were set in the hope the flames would spread to the docks is only a supposition. I had not heard that Deputy Silas Smith of the fire marshal's staff had said he believes the firebug is somebody on the inside." I have not heard of any railroad man or employe being suspected and watched. I shall investigate that, too."

Firemen raced to the scene of last night's fire in dread when summoned by an alarm from box 443. Fires which wiped out property valued at $5,000,000 have occurred within a few months within the half acre covered by box 443. So when the alarm came that, besides the twelve regular watchmen employed by the Boston & Maine, the Boston Fire Underwriters have stationed twelve extra watchmen in the neighborhood, ten more on the surrounding boats have been doubled.

Special Police Out.

In the hope of catching the firebug, as soon as an alarm is rung in from box 443, a special cordon of police is thrown around the district. Yet in spite of precautions, last night the firebug got into the unoccupied three-story building at No. 44 Water street, opposite the head of pier 4, and kindled a fire with oily waste and kerosene. It was extinguished so soon that the damage is estimated at only $500, but the fact that the firebug was at work again caused consternation among property owners in the vicinity of the fire.

Watchmen William Hunt, Jr., discovered the blaze, but it was after a suspicious circumstance was observed by Patrolman Gould. He found a door to the building unlocked and notified the P. O'Riordon estate, which owns the property. A man was sent to lock the door. This did not baffle the firebug. When he came back to break a window in the basement, as District Chief Pope discovered after the fire was out, sprinkled oil on waste, lit a fire under the stairway and fled before the blaze or smoke was noticed.

Suspect Employe.

That the police suspect a railroad employe is shown by what Deputy Smith of the fire marshal's office said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, he remarking:

"I cannot see how these fires, almost all of which have occurred on Boston & Maine property and all within an area of half an acre, could have been set without the knowledge of some man who was supposed to guard the property. Millions of dollars worth of property have been destroyed and our efforts to find the incendiary have been completely baffled.

"Watchmen are on duty here, armed and with orders to shoot on sight any suspicious character found in the vicinity who attempts to escape. I myself have been on the lookout for anybody or anything which might have set the fires. To me it looks as if the work was done by somebody on the inside."

Last night Captain Wynan, who is generally worked by the mischief occurring on his division, immediately upon the sounding of the alarm, threw out a dragnet of patrolmen in charge of two night sergeants. They covered all the territory in the neighborhood of the fire, but were unable to discover anybody who might be deemed responsible for the work. This fact confirms the opinion held in police circles that the fires are set by a Boston & Maine employe, and hereafter all efforts will be concentrated upon rounding up this man.

circumstances. It is quite likely that he will also resign from the staff.

Is a Harvard Man.

Colonel Charles H. Cole, Jr., was born in Boston, educated in the public schools of this city and at Harvard College. He entered the First Corps of Cadets as private and through all the grades to that of lieutenant. He has the rank of expert marksman and was taken to Massachusetts rifle teams to Seagirt and Fort Riley.

He accompanied company H, First Infantry, to the manoeuvres at Manassas, Va., last September.

He was appointed to the staff of Governor Douglas on December 10 and as Inspector-General of Rifle Practice. He lives in Hingham.

DR. MacDONALD PLEASED; WILL ACCEPT OFFICE

Dr. William G. MacDonald, nominated by Governor Douglas to succeed Dr. William Draper as Medical Examiner of Suffolk county, is a well known Back Bay physician. His offices are at No. 238 Dartmouth street.

"I have just received notification of my nomination," Dr. MacDonald said this afternoon, "and, of course, I am pleased that the Governor should nominate me for the place. I knew that a number of my friends have been requesting the Governor to appoint me. I shall accept the office."

Dr. MacDonald is fifty years old. He graduated from Boston College in 1877 and from the Harvard Medical School in 1881. He was for eleven years a city physician connected with the Boston Board of Health, resigning in 1896. After studying abroad for several years, he returned to practice in Boston, the city of his birth. He is now connected with the Carney Hospital as dermatologist.

"ALL RIGHT," SAYS EMMONS, WHEN TOLD COL. COLE IS NAMED

"All right," said Police Chairman Emmons briefly, when informed that Colonel Cole was to be the new chairman of the Commission.

Judge Emmons was returning from lunch. He was walking along the side walk in front of police headquarters. A group of newspaper men told him that Colonel Cole had been nominated as police commissioner. They asked if he had any thing to say.

"I have nothing to say," said Judge Emmons, "and don't know him at all."

"Colonel Cole is to be chairman of the commission also," added one of the newspaper men.

"All right," said Judge Emmons, disappearing upstairs to his private office.

"ALL RIGHT" SAYS COL. COLE

Colonel Charles H. Cole is a good man. The Boston Democracy can find no fault with such a choice, and the opposition has no need to fear that it will not receive fair play.

Alderman Frank J. O'Toole—Colonel Charles H. Cole is a good, clean man, a gentleman, and should give satisfaction.

Ex-Councilor Jeremiah J. McNamara—It is a first-class appointment. I have known Colonel Cole since a boy and he is a clean, able man of good executive ability and strong character.

Senator John J. Gartland—Colonel Cole is an active, working Democrat. He is a member of the Ward 11 Democratic committee. Miss Gartland will be in the campaign. He ought to be a model police commissioner.

BOSTON DEMOCRATS APPROVE CHOICE

Leading Democrats of Boston express much satisfaction at the appointment of Colonel Charles H. Cole, Jr., to be police commissioner. They have no hesitation in saying how they like the appointment. Sample interviews being as follows:

Alderman James F. Nolan—The appointment of Charles H. Cole as police commissioner is an excellent one and should be satisfactory to all parties. Colonel Cole is a strong and conservative man.

Alderman James M. Curley—The Governor in his appointment of Colonel Cole of police commissioner, has made a very strong one, and will be satisfactory official.

Alderman Patrick Bowen—The appointment of Colonel Charles H. Cole is a good one. The Boston Democracy can find no fault with such a choice, and the opposition has no need to fear that it will not receive fair play.

Ex-Councilor Jeremiah J. McNamara—I know Colonel Cole since a boy and he is a clean, able man of good executive ability and strong character.

Senator John J. Gartland—Colonel Cole is an active, working Democrat. He is a member of the Ward 11 Democratic committee. Miss Gartland will be in the campaign. He ought to be a model police commissioner.

BOLES GOES TO PRISON FOR LIFE

In the stolid manner that has characterized him since his arrest, Henry F. Boles of Brookline received a life sentence today in the Norfolk county Superior Criminal Court at Dedham. Judge Harris presided. Boles pleaded guilty to killing his wife, Annie M. Boles, and Patrolman Joseph McMurray, at Brookline, the evening of October 17, 1904.

The crime for which Boles was sentenced was committed one evening after Boles had been drinking heavily. He repaired to the home in a convalescent asylum, and when his wife remonstrated with him, shot her. Neighbors notified the police, and Patrolman McMurray, an old friend of Boles, was sent to arrest him. Boles shot and killed as soon as the officer entered the door.

Boles at first feigned insanity, but afterward pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. A peculiar feature of the case was that McMurray, at one time, saved the life of Boles.

CHILD'S SCREAM SCARES THIEF

NORTH WEYMOUTH, April 12.—A child's scream scared a burly thief from the residence of George F. Mayhury, 28 Saunders street. Although the man got away with a pocket book containing $50 the child's outcry frightened him away before he had a chance to take several diamond rings, a gold watch and a large roll of greenbacks which were in the room.

Mrs. Mayhury and two children were alone in the house about noon when Mrs. Mayhury heard a scream from the nursery where her little girl had just gone for a nap. Rushing in that direction she saw a large man just going down the hallway with a pocket book in his hand. Mrs. Mayhury fainted and fell to the floor, but soon recovered and notified the police.

50 YEARS OLD, WANTS DIVORCE

NEW BEDFORD, April 12.—Mrs. Georgiana Macomber and George T. Macomber, of Dartmouth, have caused a sensation in this city by filing counter divorce libels. They are over fifty years old and have lived together for twenty years.

Mrs. Macomber has filed a writ of attachment on the real estate and personal property. She names Mrs. Florence B. Sawyer, who has been housekeeper for Mr. Macomber for several years.

Mrs. Macomber contends that it is improper for a married man to let a housekeeper sit in his lap and feed him apples out of a sauce dish.

The couple have five children, four of whom are married, and all of the children have taken sides with the mother.

Mrs. Sawyer is well known here, having formerly resided in this city, disappearing just before she was about to be married to Hollis D. Smith. She is twenty-six years old and pretty.

FIRST PLUNGE TOO MUCH FOR BOYER

NEW BEDFORD, April 12.—William Boyer, sixteen years old, who took the first swim of the season in the Acushnet River, is at the Nonquitt Hospital in a critical condition resulting from injuries inflicted while taking his first plunge.

Boyer and his companions, young Boyer stripped and dove off the ferry boat the Wamsutta slip at the wharf. When close to the bottom, and far under water, the boy struck a mass of soft substance and came to the surface with a long and deep cut in his abdomen.

TROOPERS TRIED FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 12.—Thomas Burke and Thomas Burns of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry, of Fort Ethan Allen in court pleaded not guilty to the charge of holding up and robbing C. D. Vincent, of Winooski, on the night of December 1, 1904. Testimony in the case will begin today.

RICH WOMAN IS SUED FOR LOAN

NEW YORK, April 12.—Mrs. Margaret L. Kingsley, a spinster, who is fighting for a share of the estate of Henry W. Oliver, who died in Europe leaving between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000, and who is believed to have obtained a trust fund of $500,000 from Miss Oliver, which she still receives the income, has allowed judgments aggregating $50,000 to be obtained against her by default.

The judgments, which Mrs. Kingsley cannot pay, are in favor of Henry E. Beerry, of Boston, and for $17,188. This represents the entire fortune of Mrs Beerry, a Boston woman, who won her way in business despite social hindrance, and who was dazzled by the magnificence of Mrs. Kingsley's home. Mrs. Beerry accepted the proffered friendship of the woman, who seemed to be a fairy grandmother, and, it is said, readily turned over her savings in the belief that she would be rewarded for the favor.

SENATOR PLATT IS BETTER, SAYS DOCTOR

WASHINGTON, Ct., April 12.—Dr. W. J. Ward, attending Senator O. H. Platt, seemed to be very much pleased with the condition of his patient to-day. He said: "Senator Platt has not passed the danger line, I am exceedingly hopeful. There is no change for the worse. The Senator passed a comfortable night."

DUKE TO SAIL FOR THE ARCTIC MAY 1

PARIS, April 12.—The Duke of Orleans, who recently secured the Antarctic exploring concession in Belgium, has begun preparation, will sail from Norway for Franz Josef Land on May 1. Commander Gerlach, the commander in Belgium of the Antarctic voyage, will accompany the Duke of Orleans. The latter does not intend to winter in the Arctic, but to reach the pole and return to Europe through Franz Josef Land.

CHECKERBERRY AND PAREGORIC; ARREST

EXETER, N. H., April 12.—Thad Eaton, a grocery dealer, was arraigned in court to-day, charged with selling paregoric and essence of checkerberry for an intoxicating beverage. The charge is under the new law which prohibits persons without a license from selling compounds containing more than one per cent. of alcohol.

BANK MAN COMMITS SUICIDE WITH RIFLE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 12.—Arthur Leatchford, treasurer and secretary of the Chamber Savings Bank and one of the leading men in local financial circles, committed suicide at his home in Pittsford, seven miles east of Rochester early to-day, by shooting himself through the head with a repeating rifle.

DEATH OF SPRINGFIELD GIRL STILL A MYSTERY

AUTOPSY TO-DAY DOES NOT DETERMINE THE CAUSE OF THE TRAGEDY.

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, April 12.—The autopsy to-day over the body of Miss Margaret O'Brien of Hampden, who was found dead in a shed a mile and a half from her home, only deepens the mystery surrounding her death.

Medical Examiner Bates found that death was due to exhaustion and exposure, brought on by a long walk taken while Miss O'Brien was temporarily insane. Blindness caused the insanity and how the woman would get to the shed without a path to show in her wanderings still baffles the police.

After the autopsy Bates said:

"The examination of the body showed tuberculosis of the lungs, and chronic inflammation of the gall bladder and adhesions. These, however, were not sufficient to cause death. There were no marks of violence and no evidence of suicide. The woman was undoubtedly temporarily insane, and her mental condition, added to a long and fatiguing walk and exposure, doubtless led to her death. She had probably lived for several days and nights within a mile and a half of the house but because of insanity or some other reason she shed where she died. The death is mysterious, but I do not think developments will throw any great investigation, for I cannot believe there has been foul play."

The Ludlow police are working on the case, but as yet have been unable to trace the woman's movements since she left the Hospital, Worth's Island, on March 18. Her relatives think that she wandered away in a fit of temporary aberration, and died from exposure.

Laid Down Deliberately.

There was evidence that she had laid down deliberately in the shed where she was found. Her skirt and sack were rolled into a pillow for her head, and apparently she had placed herself in the position in which the body lay.

Miss O'Brien has been missing since March 18, and a constant search for her has been kept up by her relatives and the police. The body was found by Joe Bonetti, a friend of O'Brien, in a shed used for storing corn stalks on the Allyn farm, which is about two miles from Hampden on Main street. Bonetti was on his way to Springfield to Hampden. The building is about 200 feet from the road, and about a half from the house in Hampden.

Miss O'Brien came to Springfield to visit her sister, Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, telegraph operator at the Hotel Worthy. The two sisters had planned to visit their parents in Hampden on March 19, which was Sunday. The younger sister, Miss Elizabeth, reported at the hotel for the usual income, but as the hours passed and she did not come, the girl went without her.

From that time until her lifeless body was found by her brother, nothing had been seen of the woman. It is not known how she had an escort in the world, and her brother and sister are both so believe that she was murdered. The fact that the idea of suicide is unreasonable, as Miss O'Brien was never for unusual periods of illness, had no reason to be unhappy.

The neighborhood where Miss O'Brien lived is greatly wrought over the affair, and much sympathy is expressed for her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Brien. The dead woman was thirty-nine years old and had lived in Hampden nearly all her life.

ROOSEVELT GETS COYOTE

LAWTON, Ok., April 12.—President Roosevelt enjoyed seeing John Abernathy, the famous wolf catcher, and the President's companion on the wolf hunt, kill a coyote by choking it to death with his hands. The President opened one lone wolf early afterwards. He lunched from the back of a mess wagon in a "cow outfit" for the first time since entering the reservation.

While the President was exercising early Sunday morning he killed a rattlesnake with his riding quirt. A report from Frederick says that arrangements have been made for the President to be given at that place to-night, in which the presidential party, Governor Ferguson and the former delegate, Dennis Flynn, will participate.

The first camp in Colorado will be in the Hunstman Hills and the President has signified his desire to go after bear the first thing. Big game is plentiful thereabouts.

VERMONT ARBOR DAY.

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 12.—Gov. Charles J. Bell has issued a proclamation naming Friday, April 28, as Arbor day.

MISS SEARS AND BOB WRENN WIN

NEW YORK, April 12.—Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston and Robert D. Wrenn defeated Miss Marion Fenno of Boston and George L. Wrenn, Jr., in the finals of the national championship in tennis, by the scores of 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

There were several brilliant plays on both sides and the women were much in evidence, both being unusually skilful in smashing, pinching and passing.

The women's singles in Class A will be begun to-day. The contestants in this series will include some of the leading players from Boston, Philadelphia and the local clubs.

PET DOG BITES LOWELL WOMAN

LOWELL, April 12.—Mrs. Josephine Hodgman, who is living with her father, George W. Tilton, at No. 8 Whipple street, was terribly bitten by a pet dog that mad dog attacked her and her father.

This has renewed the mad-dog scare here of a few weeks ago. Mrs. Hodgman was at work on the second floor when the dog suddenly jumped at her throat. She tried to beat the animal off, but its teeth sank into her breast and terribly lacerated her. It rushed at her again and tore her arms.

Her father rushed to her assistance, got the dog by the throat, strangled it, threw it into the cellar and locked the door.

The dog's brain will be sent to the State Board of Health in Boston for examination for rabies.

SCHOOL BOARD WARS ON CUPID

UTICA, N. Y., April 12.—Cupid is playing havoc with the female school population of Oneida that the School Board of that city has decided to bar from its arrows. The resignations of Miss Luella M. Wilcox and Miss Winona A. Swenden, teachers who are to be married soon, came together, capping the climax of a long list of teachers who have deserted their classes in the last few months to accept nuptial positions.

When they came the Board of Education held a meeting and it was decided that all of the teachers who are left will have to sign agreements to remain single a year, at least.

HAD NO MORAL RIGHT TO JUDGE ROCKEFELLER

This Reason Given by Prudential Committee in Voting to Keep Oil King's Gift.

REPORT IS MADE PUBLIC

The Prudential Committee of the American Board of Foreign Missions to-day made known its reasons for refusing to give back the $100,000 gift of John D. Rockefeller. The committee states that it has not the moral right to pass judgment upon Mr. Rockefeller, as he has not been tried and found guilty by the church, and, secondly, that it has not the legal right to give back his money after it had been taken for the purpose of doing certain missionary work. He could demand of the board, the answer says, through the courts, that the committee keep the money and proceed to use it as offered.

With the publication to-day of the committee's final answer to the protestants who desire the gift returned, there becomes available at once for the use of the committee both the remainder of Mr. Rockefeller's gift, not already spent, and also a fund of $50,000 made by an American millionaire since the gift controversy began. He stipulated, officers of the board say, that they could use the gift provided Mr. Rockefeller's money be accepted. The name of the millionaire is withheld.

Immediately upon the announcement that the answer of the Prudential Committee was ready, Secretary Herbert Gleason of the protesting committee was sent a copy of the answer. With it went the unofficial notice from a member of the Prudential Committee that that body stood ready to call a special meeting of the American Board to consider the question. The by-laws of the Board provide that the committee shall issue a call if twenty-five corporate members of the Board demand it.

Carry Protest to Full Board.

"More than the necessary number of members of the board have told us that they are against the acceptance of the money," said Secretary Gleason this afternoon, "and efforts will be made at once to have them draw up the necessary demand. We believe that it will be done and the meeting called."

The American Board consists of 500 members of the Congregational church. The next regular meeting of the body is next September, in Seattle, Wash. The Board has the power to rescind the action of its Prudential Committee. This the protestants will seek to have it do.

Text of the Report.

The report says:

"In adopting the report of the Special Committee which was made March 28 we desire to express our satisfaction of the spirit shown by the protestants in their remarks to the corporate members and the ministers of our Congregational churches. We welcome the effort to awaken the public conscience to the necessity of higher ethical standards in the acquiring of wealth, which the protest expresses.

"Our opposition to the protest is based upon the conviction that the protestants advocate a means to accomplish this object which is not only unwise, but ethically wrong. The protest also gives us the opportunity to state anew certain principles which it is most important to keep in mind.

"What has been the one question before the committee? A request was made that we return a gift of $100,000 for special educational work, which with the distribution was accepted weeks before, and afterwards appropriated. The money was received in good faith and credited in the usual way, no attempt being made to conceal it, and no attempt to make it conspicuous. 'In further reply it should be said:

"Discouraging Benevolence."

"First. The committee are convinced that the action proposed by the protestants would have been wrong, for it would have been to express disapprobation and condemnation of a man when he was doing an act of benevolence. This would be unjust to confuse the issue and to act contrary to the Christian spirit. To withhold a person from doing good is a wrong way in which to endeavor to bring him to doing right.

"It is no wrong to condemn him when he is doing a bad deed. No matter how much bad thing a man may have done in the past, it is wrong to condemn him for goods which he does in the present, or to prevent him in his effort to help others by good or right motives. It is no doing; always provided that he does it lawful things he gives. And this lawful right can be settled only in the courts of the land.

"Second—The committee are convinced that the method suggested by the protestants would produce the most harmful results, and that the attack is directed at the wrong point. The adoption of the committee would encourage every effort to raise the ethical standard of business life and ever strive through the enactment and enforcement of laws and the formation of correct public opinion to raise business life to the plane of Christian brotherhood.

"At the same time we must reject as barriers to prevent any such action as being good deed. Rather would we encourage any man who is prospered to generous giving.

"May Be a Menace."

"The accumulation of vast fortunes may be a menace to society; their distribution to the needy while yet alive is an important safeguard to society; there is a growing tendency in this latter direction. The return by the board of this gift would distinctly hinder rather than help what ought to be encouraged in every legitimate way. At the same time it must be clearly understood that we will neither by refusing a gift from any lawful source condemn the donor, nor by accepting his gift commend him.

"Third—We hold a charter as a mission ary corporation for certain specific duties, granted to us without limitations. We are requested to decide questions of temperance, or economics, or socialism. To attempt this would be an assumption of an authority outside of our charter and never exercised by us or by churches. We are not even the forum for such discussions.

"Fourth—At the same time we ought not to allow the board to be used as an instrument for the agitation of general questions which in whole or outside of its province. Important as these questions are, the place for their discussion is elsewhere.

"Fourth—This committee has no right by retaining this gift to set up a new moral standard with regard to missionary giving, against the judgment of many members of the corporate members. The report of March 28th was sent to the corporate members without note or comment. Nevertheless, in this brief time seventy voluntary messages have been received already from 180 members; of these only 4 express their wish that the gift should be retained, and twenty-five that it should be returned. The decision of which is asked to take a position on a question of finance and ethics which is contrary not only to the position taken by the individual churches, but also to that which has been almost universally approved by the highest Christian sentiment of our nation.

Other Instances Cited.

"In a recent great calamity in New York, when there was an immediate need of money in a large amount to mitigate human suffering, a gentleman generously came to make good what was needed; at the time of the recent famine in India the same gentleman sent his check to the Famine Relief Committee to relieve the suffering there, both gifts were gratefully received. By what principle shall gifts be received for relieving humanity in New York and India, while the same donor is denied the opportunity of helping the youth of India, Turkey and Japan to a Christian education?

"Fifth—The Prudential Committee, in receiving the gift, would by that act pass judgment upon the character of the donor and the business methods which he is said to have used, and thus would be doing a wrong to the church of which he is a member. Any accusation against him could not, in Christian courtesy, be acted upon until the case had first been tried before the Lord's people, which endeavors to be a member in good and regular standing. If he is charged with such unchristian conduct he should be tried before the church; if he is charged with breaking the law, he should be tried by the courts.

"It is impossible for this committee to investigate the subject sufficiently to be warranted in passing judgment upon the deeds of the church and the civil courts. Lawful possession of wealth should be taken as proof of ownership; membership in a good standing in the Christian church should be regarded as sufficient evidence of character for solicitation for the work of the board. Even in punishing a man proved guilty the church has no right to withdraw or excommunicate him, but hardly to prevent him from doing good.

"No Obligation Involved."

"Sixth—It ought to be stated that this gift, like all gifts, places no officer or member of the American Board or any minister of a church under any obligation of any individual or corporation, so that he is free to be elected or to any one to be hindered in the least from expressing at there upon any of the great questions of society. If it were otherwise, not a member of the committee would have voted to accept this gift. And we believe the opposite is equally true, that if the donor had felt that it would be in the least restricted, not a dollar would ever have been given.

"Seventh—As the question raised was a moral one, we have answered it on the same plane. We have no wish to hide behind any other reason. It must, however, be said publicly, as it has been already intimated to some of the protestants privately, that we cannot legally return this money. We are advised by those in whose legal counsel we have the highest confidence that in the case of a public charity established entirely by voluntary contributions, where the trustees have no interest and are acting not only for the benefit of others, the trustees have no legal or moral right to refuse money because they do not approve of the giver. Furthermore, if we are rightly informed, decisions of the highest courts are to the effect that trustees who have once accepted a gift and assumed certain obligations have no power to return the gift and to absolve themselves from their obligations.

"If their action created rights which their action created rights which their actions may change during this gift we should be charged for refusing from those who differ in judgment with us. We also most gratefully appreciate their expressed determination that by personal self-denial and sacrifice, if necessary, the income of our treasury shall in no wise suffer and that their personal views shall not be allowed to cause alienation of their fellow church members from the support of the foreign missions as carried on by this board.

"In the same brotherly spirit we are sure they will appreciate the fact that we feel positive and increasing conviction that the action of the committee would be unwise as a method of condemning evil, but that, in the present situation, it would be morally wrong, as it is legally impossible. We cannot stand with absolute faithfulness for the right, as we see it, so long as we refuse the right trust which the board has put upon us."

ROXBURY MASTER WOULD PREVENT SCHOOL "GRAFT"

Head of High School Refuses to Turn Over Photograph Bids to the Pupils.

Satisfied that the courts shall determine the right of his deputies to the photographer bids, James E. Purdy, Headmaster Charles M. Clay of the Roxbury High School still declines to turn over to the pupils the photographic outfits of the photograph committee of the senior class. Mr. Purdy's bids for making class pictures, contending that "graft" on the part of pupils will be prevented by the action.

There is no quarrel between the head master and the members of the committee, in which the annoyance of Mr. Purdy and Miss Etta Lill. They George E. Pearce and Miss Etta Lill. They say the suit has arisen over a misunderstanding on the part of the photographer, that they have no desire to see the bids opened in the presence of the entire class, and that Mr. Clay has acted properly in keeping the bids locked in his desk.

"There have been instances in my knowledge where pupils have 'grafted' in pretty way over this question of class photographs," says Mr. Clay in explaining his action, "and I am determined in every way in my power to keep them there.

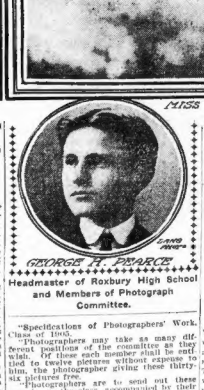
Have Received Perquisites.

"I have known of two instances where pupils have asked photographers how much it was worth to give them the setting for the work. There have been cases where pupils, knowing the cost of some of the photographs, have received perquisites for furnishing the order. Such action as this is forbidding that is intended. A member of this year's class has informed me that his plan is that the bids be controlled a certain number of votes and asked how much in votes were worth. I shall show this in court to-morrow.

"There have been past years when great dissension has arisen in the high school over the matter of class photographs, and I am determined it shall not recur this year.

"If Mr. Purdy sent a bid and it is kept to be opened when the entire class is assembled, that is as it ought to be and as we expected it would be. It seems to me that there must be a misunderstanding on his part as to the conditions.

"To make it clear just what the conditions of the bidding for the Roxbury High School work are, the following copy of the letter inviting bids is given out. It is assented by the Class Committee to be an exact duplicate of the letter sent every photographer:



GEORGE E. PEARCE

Headmaster of Roxbury High School and Members of Photograph Committee.

"Specifications of Photographers' Work, Class of 1905.

"Photographers may take as many different positions of the committee as they wish. Of these each member shall be entitled to twelve pictures without expense to him, the photographer giving these thirty-six pictures free.

"Photographers are to send out these samples to the class, accompanied by their bids, which bids will not be opened in class meeting but submitted to the class.

"The committee will then select a class photographer by vote. Each photographer bidding must send a written agreement (1) that he will not give any picture to any pupil except by the committee's order, (2) that he will not advertise, (3) that he will make no attempt to undersell the class photographer or secure work from members of the class should contract be awarded to another. This written agreement is to be mailed to Mr. Clay, and no bids by any photographer will be considered until this agreement has been received.

May Give Composite Free.

"The photographers' bids are to be mailed to the committee and labeled 'bids for photographs.'

"The members of the class of 1905 hereby agree to patronize the class photographer in preference to anyone else.

"The photographer shall also include in their bids the prices at which they will furnish the class with cabinet photographs of different kinds.

"The class photographer may give the members of the committee, each, one composite photograph without charge, for their services in arranging the sittings and in selecting the poses, but not of the class. If he chooses to do so he shall make them no other compensation whatever."

4 MORE DIE OF SPOTTED FEVER

Spotted fever is steadily claiming victims in different parts of the State. Mrs. Mae Fuller of No. 117 Rindge avenue is the fourth person to die of cerebro-spinal meningitis in Cambridge. She was twenty-six years old and left a few hours only.

Another name has been added to the list of Cambridge victims of cerebro-spinal meningitis with the death of Ernest Sweet, twenty years old, of No. 105 Green street, Cambridge. Sweet was a stenographer and died March 30.

In Salem, Martin L. Lee, of Powers court, 24 years old, died after six hours of suffering. This is the first death from spotted fever in Salem this year. William Coughlin will recover, it is believed.

Death in Essex was of Joseph Holmes, Jr., seven years old, a pupil of the Thompson school, which has been closed.

NAN PATTERSON AND HER SISTER MEET AT LAST

Mrs. Morgan Smith and Florodora Girl Weep in Each Other's Embrace.

TO BE IN ADJOINING CELLS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Nan Patterson and her sister, Julia Smith, wife of J. Morgan Smith, met in the matron's room of the Tombs Prison to-day for the first time since the shooting of Caesar Young, almost a year ago. The two girls threw themselves in each other's arms and wept hysterically, while their old father, the tears running down his withered cheeks, looked on.

After the arraignment of Smith and his wife before Judge Foster, on the charge of conspiring with Nan to extort money from Caesar Young, they were taken over to the Tombs. Lawyers Abraham Levy, Daniel J. O'Reilly, Philip Waldheim and Herbert Lindenauer had preceded them. Nan was brought down to the council room and waited for fifteen minutes, tapping her feet impatiently on the floor and watching a spider crawling over the Tombs entrance on the Bridge of Sighs.

"Oh, there they are!" she exclaimed. "Oh, how Julia has aged! My God! She looks terribly thin!"

Julia has been very ill," said Mr. O'Reilly, "but she is all right now."

Sisters Embraced.

Mrs. Smith entered the room alone. Nan sprang toward her and threw her arms about her neck. Julia returned the embrace, and in a moment the sisters were weeping together.

Nan looked at her sister's hair, which has become streaked with gray during the past six months.

"Oh, Julia, how ill you look! You have aged twenty years," she exclaimed.

"Yes, Nan, I have been terribly ill," said Mrs. Smith. "I weight less than 100 pounds, but I am getting better. I'll be all right soon."

Nan stroked her sister's hair, and the tears came afresh. The two women talked of their mother and of each other. Nan was the first to recover herself.

"They'll have the whole family in bail after a while," she said.

Just then Morgan Smith entered. Nan held out her hand to him and put up her cheek to be kissed.

"Hello Morgie," she said. "How are you?"

She did not show much interest in him, but went back to her sister. While the two were talking the jailer opened the door. He watched them for a few minutes, and then went out to see Warden Flynn.

"If you can grant an old father's wish," he said, "I wish you would place my daughters and their mother as possible."

Cells Close Together.

Warden Flynn said he would place Nan and Julia in cells close to each other on the same tier of the women's department. They will be in the room of the colder during certain hours of the day, and without restraint. Warden Flynn says that District Attorney Jerome has given orders that Nan be treated as a prisoner.

Hyman Storm, the pawnbroker, from whom the gun with which Caesar Young was shot, was purchased, was in court to-day with Smith's wife as the principal witness. The pawnbroker, a tall, stooping man, looked at the prisoners throughout the proceedings. He was taken into the court room he said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I meet so many people that it would be impossible for me to remember their faces."

After the hearing he said:

"What I told you before holds good now."

He would say no more.

Nan Patterson, a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter learned that Stern had been unable to identify her.

Newsboy in Court.

Joseph Hewett, the one-armed, one-legged newsboy, who testified at a former trial that he saw a man whom he believed to be Morgan Smith strike Nan in front of Palet's at Columbus Circle on the night before the shooting, took the stand Tuesday and were loitering on the mall loonires. We came by train and were soon broke. We'd like to get home now."

The Newport police asked the Boston police to communicate with the boys' parents. Mrs. McKenzie is coming here for them. Mrs. Parrill has asked the Newport police to send her boy home, and Mrs. Ellsner, according to the Boston police, is indifferent as to what is done with her son.

The boys range in age from fourteen to eighteen years. There is no charge against them.

WOMEN "GYM" CLASS EXHIBITS

Yesterday was a gala day at the Ward 9 gymnasium, corner of Harrison avenue and Plympton street, South End. Public class exhibitions were given by the married women, schoolgirls and the young women's classes. Professor John J. Driscoll was master of ceremonies.

The exercises included fancy drill, dumbbell, Indian club and wand drills, marching, dances and a basketball tournament.

The first team of the young women's class were the victors in the tournament, defeating the second young women's five by a score of 10 to 1. At the close of the morning exhibition Professor Driscoll was presented with a diamond stick pin by Miss Mary O'Callaghan of Charlestown in behalf of the married women's class.

The exercises were attended by Commissioners of Baths Lane and O'Brien, Mrs. Lawrence Logan, Mrs. Jacob Hecht and the Rev. Francis Bolan and Mercy of the Cathedral. The classes at the gym will continue until June 1.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of the American May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly" begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

I was out of health and laid down sexually had no appetite, was troubled with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt that they might be, and began taking Swamp-Root. There is such a pleasant taste to Swamp-Root, and it goes right to the spot and gives immediate relief. In a few days I was feeling like a new man, and in a few weeks was entirely cured in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to sufferers.

Yours truly,
MRS. A. L. WALKER, 231 East Linden St., Atlanta, Ga.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering and fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles, make your head ache and make you feel miserable. Indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, make you feel as though you had heart trouble, you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

How to Find Out

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take a sample from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours, or as long as natural, if it milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney liver and bladder troubles.

SPECIAL NOTE.—So successful is Swamp-Root in promptly curing even the most distressing cases of kidney, liver or bladder trouble, that to prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Boston Daily American.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

BAD BREATH

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and it made my breath offensive. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having the smell of decayed matter. I have taken pills, Cascarets and after using them I am willingly and cheerfully recommending them to my friends. I am perfectly sure that I owe my present excellent health to my one suffering from such troubles."
Chas. S. Halpern, 154 E. 111 St., New York, N. Y.

TWO MEN FLEE FROM BEEF INVESTIGATION

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS FOLLOWING A SEIZURE OF SECRET TRUST RECORDS.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, April 12.—The Beef Trust investigation is coming to a sensational climax. Following the discovery of six trunks with the innermost secrets of the Trust in them, it is found that the two men who are high in the Trust councils, and who kept these records, have fled. They are believed to be in Canada, and United States Secret Service men are seeking them in every quarter.

On top of this information it is revealed that the United States officials had information of a conspiracy to seize the trunks from the Grand Jury and then destroy the evidence in them.

The government is in possession of information that twenty other trunks, said to contain packing house records, have been secured, and the secret service department is making strenuous efforts to locate them.

The two men who are missing are G. H. Godfrey and H. H. Cross. Both are officials of the Acting Trading Company, which now stands almost alone as the concern through which all the secret and illegal business of the Trust was carried on. It appears that they dropped out of sight several weeks ago when the investigation began. They were traced as far as Toronto, but there, for the time at least, track of them was lost.

Dr. Pierce Asks Visitors to Go Through His Laboratory to See Process of Manufacture.

"PATENT MEDICINES."

Dr. Pierce's "Medical Discovery"

which has been so well and favorably known for over a third of a century has nothing but pure and safe remedial ingredients entering into it.

THE PROOF.

It took Dr. Pierce many years of experience and trial to find out just the right proportion of the following medicinal roots and plants to use in his "Golden Medical Discovery"—so that the action would be positively certain. This vegetable remedy can not harm the most delicate system—on the other hand it gives new strength and virility to the constitution. A safe and certain spring tonic, reconstructive and blood-maker. It cures stomach and blood disorders.

This medicine contains the following non-alcoholic vegetable extracts:

℞

Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis).

Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica).

Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis).

Cherrybark (Prunus Virginiana).

Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis).

Mandrake (Podophyllum Peltatum).

FALL RIVER GIRL MISSING

FALL RIVER, April 12.—Millie Andrews, twenty years of age, has been missing from her home in Adamsville since last Sunday. While Mrs. Andrews, her mother, was visiting in Newport her daughter disappeared and every effort to find some trace of the missing young woman has failed.

Miss Andrews often visited friends in Fall River and she has not been seen by them, although it is reported that she was seen on South Main street in that city Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Miss Andrews is well known in Fall River and Newport, where she has often taken part in amateur theatricals.

WANTS WOMEN AS "KNIGHTS"

The question of admitting women to the order of the Knights of Labor is a new and important proposition which is being considered at to-day's annual meeting in Knights of Labor hall of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge of the K. of L.

Since 1868 the order has paid out upward of $84,000,000 in death benefits. Competition has been keen against other orders with fewer death benefits and consequent cheaper membership rates. In late years it has found more difficulty in securing new members on this account.

New plans of assessing members were recently adopted. This improved the financial standing of the order for a time, but has not helped it. A new life is which is considered essential.

Therefore, Grand Dictator Oliver S. Hayward of Hingham has suggested that at this annual session of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge a measure be passed instructing the delegates to the supreme lodge to work for the admission of women to the order.

The finances of the grand lodge are in better condition than they have been for some years.

DENIES THAT HE SLEW COOK

Charged with being an accomplice in the murder of Alfonso Turi, an Italian cook, at Readville, March 4, Luigi Sata pleaded not guilty before Judge Dunbar in the Dedham superior court to-day and was committed to jail, without bail, to wait a hearing April 20.

Sata's arrest came as a result of a tip given the police by Giuseppi Sabatino, who is held in the Dedham jail on the same charge. Chief Hayes of the Back Bay police, went to South Boston and found Sata working as a laborer for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

LITTLE BASIC TUBERCULOSIS

The newest discoveries as to the causes and cures of the different forms of tuberculosis were discussed by physicians at the sixty-fifth annual meeting of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Medical Society in Pilgrim Hall to-day. There was not one out of every ninety cases of the disease in really basic pulmonary tuberculosis, was the theory advanced by Dr. Herbert C. Clapp in a paper on the subject.

"Out of 3,252 cases of consumption treated at the sanatorium at Rutland," said Dr. Clapp, "only five were of basic tuberculosis have been found.

"It is believed that this fact makes possible many cures of consumption.

"Dr. George H. Kerr read a paper on 'Tubercular Lesions of the Bones.

"This is found among children, and proves puzzling to physicians," said Dr. Kerr, "resembling, as it does, hip disease and disease of the bone joints."

HARD WORK

When Your Nerves Give Way, Dr. Greene's Nervura Builds Them Up and Makes Honest Strength.

The woman who does her own work and takes care of children has need of all her strength. All around us there are examples of what overwork will do. It overtaxes the nerves and makes life a burden.

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the great strengthener for overworked women. It gives them strength from their food and strength from perfect rest at night. It regulates the nerves and builds up in every way.

Mrs. John H. Laux, 48 Springfield Ave., Newark, N. J., says:

"When I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy I was terribly run down. My baby had been very sick, and I was nursing him day and night. I got so worried I could not eat nor sleep.

When I tried to eat I heard it seemed to come up in a lump in my throat and choke me, and I would leave everything untasted. Any little noise would make me jump, and I lost all my color and got so thin I thought I would never get back my flesh. I commenced Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to all women run down through worry, overwork or sickness, and I gladly give this letter in the hope that other mothers who are worrying and wearing themselves out may be trying to do their work, may know how to keep up the health under such trying circumstances."

You love your home and your children, and you want to do the work, but when you overdo, your nerves begin to cry out against outrage. You must have help, and you'll find it in Dr. Greene's Nervura, which is known everywhere, and which is everywhere working wonders for women. If there is anything about your case that you do not understand, or if other doctors have failed to cure you, call upon Dr. Greene at once or write him at his office, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., and receive his advice absolutely free.

NEWS OF LABOR.

The executive board of District Assembly No. 30, K. of L., incorporated, is opposed to the wearing of uniforms by park department employes, and also raises an objection to employes paying for them. At present the employes are paying for the sense of the uniforms. The matter was referred to the District Assembly for further action.

It has been reported to the executive board that certain business agents of unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have been misrepresenting the Knights of Labor to the trade departments at City Hall. District Secretary-Treasurer M. J. Crowley was instructed to investigate the matter and report to the District Assembly next Sunday at the meeting at No. 724 Washington street.

A communication was received from General Secretary-Treasurer Thomas H. Flaherty at Washington stating that the United States Supreme Court had accepted the appeal of the Knights of Labor, and the postponed, thus placing the decision of the Court of Appeals to the effect that Justice Sanderson's decision that Simon Burns, dismissed worksman, and Thomas J. Lanning, general secretary-treasurer, are the legal officers of the Knights of Labor, still holds.

MANY SONS OF WAGE EARNERS IN HARVARD

Labor Bureau Bulletin Shows High Percentage of Workmen's Sons Students.

RECOMMENDS NEW BILL

That a great proportion of college students are the sons of wage-earners is the conclusion drawn from the State Bureau of Statistics of Labor. Bulletin No. 35 has been issued, containing statistics regarding free schools, manual training for men and women, labor legislation and industrial agreements.

Nearly 10 per cent. of the students at Harvard are the sons of workingmen. The bulletin says:

"Considering the colleges in detail, we find some interesting facts. For example, Harvard University is often called the rich man's college, yet of its enrollment over 10 per cent. are the offspring of the wage earner, and its women's department, Radcliffe College, shows a similar percentage, 10.81.

Boston College has 35.45 per cent. of its total enrollment included in the class 'wage earners,' and Clark University reports that 27.86 per cent. of the students are the sons of wage earners. But it is when we consider the normal schools and training schools that we find the greatest percentage in this class, while the schools which are located in the midst of the busiest communities also exhibit very high percentages in this respect."

The bulletin deals at length with free employment agencies, a bill for the promotion of which is now before the Legislature, and which the report unequivocally favors.

TELLS HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

"It is the abuse of the body that makes men grow ugly," said Mme. Yale, the "Queen of Beauty," in the course of her lecture at the Colonial Theatre. The auditorium was crowded with interested listeners to her address on the art of being beautiful, and the lithe movements of the "Queen" were admired and commented on.

Mme. Yale advised her hearers to consider their diet and to take plenty of exercise to preserve their youth and beauty. She gave several examples of calisthenic exercises for the development of the muscles, and told of the good effects of bathing and massaging.

Her costumes, which she changed twice in the course of her lecture, were of the latest pattern, and illustrated the most beautiful of modern styles. In the last part of her lecture she appeared in an up-to-date creation of white chiffon, embroidered over with dark blue, and as pretty as her, which excited the admiration of the ladies in the audience.

Incidentally Mme. Yale told of the best method of using her remedies to avert the ravages of old age.

FIGHT COTTON CLAIM TO END

The Cotton claim for legal fees of ten per cent. of $1,641,740.85, the amount awarded the State of Massachusetts for expenses incurred during the Civil War, will be fought to a finish by Attorney-General Parker, regardless of a decision just rendered by the Supreme Court in a minor point against the Attorney-General.

Mr. Cotton, instead of waiting for his fee until the sum was paid into the treasury of the Commonwealth, apparently doubted that he would get his money and tied the whole thing up with an injunction until he gets his percentage. This injunction will go into force Tuesday, four on May 1, at a rate to the State of $56,000 in interest, figuring the interest at 3½ per cent.

Attorney-General Parker does not object to the size of Mr. Cotton's bill so much as he does his attitude in trying to collect it.

WOMAN SUES MAN OF STONE

The petrified man, who has delighted Boston audiences for months, is in trouble. The stony substance that has made Charles F. Gilpatrick a mint for dime museum managers, has cost him his heart, and he refuses to marry Miss Lillian Gillis of No. 257 North Tenth street, Philadelphia. Hence he is sued for $25,000 by Lillian, who says that while she nursed him through an attack of typhoid fever in a Boston hotel, he promised to marry her.

Mr. Gilpatrick hails from Hiram, Me. He is one of the three petrified men that are known to science. Miss Gillis says that while his courtship was somewhat cold, he certainly asked her to be his wife, and she values his affection at just $25,000. She has engaged counsel and will press the suit.

SHERIFF SHOT DEAD.

MEMPHIS, April 12.—A mob of masked men entered the jail at Senatobia, Miss., early to-day to release a prisoner and in an encounter with Sheriff Bing, shot that officer dead.

DOUBLE HONORS WON BY MALDEN GIRL IN OPERA

OPERA DIRECTOR AND STAR.

Miss Pauline Vezina Directs Production of "Lorelei" and Sings Leading Role.

Young women socially prominent in Malden were actively interested in the production of Mendelssohn's unfinished opera, "Lorelei," in the Malden Auditorium last evening, and the cast of seven women principals and chorus of sixty included the best singers in that and neighboring cities.

Miss Pauline Vezina had charge of the production, and praise is hers to-day from all who attended, for her direction as well as for her singing of the principal soprano part.

The principals were Miss Vezina, Miss Edna Nutter, Miss Gertrude Gifford, Miss Anna Musgrove, Miss Alice Williams, Miss Ethel Murphy and Miss Fermun. The "Ave Maria" trio was sung by the Misses Nutter, Musgrove and Farnum, and the Vintage Song by a male quartette. Madam Beale Moreley conducted the chorus and Mrs. Adelh M. Hatch was the accompanist.

COTTON STEAMER IS DISABLED BY FIRE

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Mallory line steamer Lampasas has arrived in port, disabled as a result of a fire in the cargo during the voyage from Galveston. The damage to the hull of the vessel was estimated at $15,000, and the destroyed cargo of cotton probably $6,000.

CARNEGIES IN NORTHAMPTON

Will Attend Dedication of Two Buildings Presented by Ironmaster.

GUESTS OF G. W. CABLE.

Special to the Boston American.

NORTHAMPTON, April 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie arrived in Northampton this afternoon to participate in the dedication of the New Home Culture Club building and the Household Arts Club building, both of which are gifts of Mr. Carnegie. The party came from Spring field on a regular train, declining to use a special offered by George W. Cable.

Late this afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie will be tendered a reception in the New Club building, and this evening a meeting will be held in the Academy of Music. The Home Culture Club's chorus of thirty voices will sing, followed by a brief address by Myron Coomer, George W. Cable, president of the club, will speak for the work of the Home Culture Club's Association. Mr. Carnegie will then make an address. At the reception to be held in the academy an opportunity will be given those present to meet Mr. Carnegie.

Workingmen of Northampton have presented a beautiful jewel casket, made entirely from local material and by local workmanship, for presentation to Mrs. Carnegie.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie will remain in Northampton until Thursday forenoon, as guests of Mr. Cable at "Forty Acres," the Dryads Green.

ADVERSE TO APPLEYARD

Judge Morton Rules There Is No Reason for His Release As Matter of Law.

After exhaustive arguments by his attorney, Fred H. Williams, and by the attorney-general, in opposition, the habeas corpus petition of Arthur E. Appleyard, the state street banker and street railway magnate under indictment on a charge of grand larceny from the German Bank of Buffalo, was taken under advisement until Tuesday next by Justice Morton in the Supreme Court to-day. The court stated that as a matter of law he could see no reason for releasing the prisoner.

The decision of the full bench of the court ordering Judge Morton to proceed with the hearing on the merits of the case brought the matter to a head to-day.

Attorney Williams argued that his client could not be construed as a fugitive from justice in any case, as there had been no conscious flight from the State of New York. Further, he urged that if it could be proved that a crime had been actually committed it was not committed in the State of New York, but at Boston over a telephone. He quoted numerous citations of precedents in other States, among them South Dakota.

Attorney General Parker replied. He handled Appleyard mercilessly. During his arraignment of the latter the indicted man entered the court room and took a seat in the rear.

Mr. Parker said that the Governor had been delegated exclusive jurisdiction in matters of extradition. Mr. Williams's citations, he said, came from states in which the courts of last resort had not yet become established as authorities. He pointed out that Appleyard had been in New York since the crime was committed the authorities of that state did not know of his presence or of the existence of the crime itself. The public duty of this Commonwealth was to honor the request for the extradition and sustain the Governor.

Judge Morton said that as a matter of law he could not rule that there was no reason for releasing Appleyard, but he would like to consult Chief Justice Knowlton before making his formal decision, which he would hand down on Tuesday.

GINTER GROCERY CO. BALL MAY 1

Preparations are being made for the eighth annual ball of the employes of the Ginter Grocery Company, which will take place in Odd Fellows' Hall on the evening of May 1. A concert will be given by Bartlett's orchestra, and an hour's enjoyment provided by the employes themselves.

The committee in charge of the ball follows: Headquarters, J. J. Buckley; D. J. Deasey, Chester H. Smith, E. E. Priest, E. J. Copeland, Union street; A. C. Dancey, 1 Copeland; J. Washington street; W. J. Sherry, Summer street; George W. Gilling, Wood; Fremont street; D. J. Yerza; Shawmut avenue; John A. Wilson; Lovell; W. H. Turner.

Carnegie Tells Mayor Dunne To Fight on for Civic Ownership

Tell Judge Dunne not to stop until every public utility that can be made the subject of private monopoly has been placed under the control and operation of the city. Chicago is still in its infancy. It has scarcely yet begun to grow. Some of these days I am going to take a car and go clear through to the coast to see how the country has grown up.—Message sent by Andrew Carnegie to Judge Dunne, new mayor of Chicago.

MYSTERY IN SUICIDE OF LOCAL BROKER

C. M. Merriam's Body Found in Hotel Room and No Cause Is Known.

HIS WIFE IS PROSTRATED

The friends and relatives of Clarence Messer Merriam, of No. 22 Ridge street, Newton Centre, are baffled by the mystery of his suicide. His body was found in a room at Clark's Hotel by three loudness friends who called to see him. His wife is prostrated.

Mr. Merriam was an investment broker with offices at No. 159 Devonshire street. He took a room at the hotel Saturday and was frequently about the lobby. He appeared to be in good health and spirits.

Mr. Merriam was found on his bed, fully dressed and covered with blood. He had shot himself through the right temple with a 32-calibre revolver, which was found on the floor.

Mr. Merriam was born in Waterbury, Ct., in 1873. He was graduated from Williams College, and at an early age went to Chicago. He came to Boston about six years ago. Mr. Merriam had not been ill, and as far as is known by friends who were often in his company, had no business worries.

He was very prominent in social circles, having been a member of the Newton Club, the Newton Centre Golf Club and other social organizations. With his wife he was very active in the working for the First Congregational Church. Besides his wife, Mr. Merriam leaves two daughters, one eight and the other five years old.

SOMERVILLE TRACK MEET.

A big athletic meet is scheduled on July 4 at Somerville at the Broadway athletic field. Some of the best-known men that have ever pulled shoe will compete in the open events.

TWO KILLED IN RIOT AT MINE; FIGHT STILL ON

Minnesota Strike Sympathizers Attack Workers—Deputies Leave for Scene.

EXPECT MORE BLOODSHED

DULUTH, Minn., April 12.—Two striking miners were killed and several injured in a riot at Hibbing. The riot was not over early to-day, strike sympathizers then being engaged in firing on the men who remained at work.

Sheriff William Batts of St. Louis County, has called upon for 100 deputies, and left here with them on a special train at 1 o'clock this morning. Two hundred men employed at Rust, Hull and Zeiler's properties struck for an advance of pay from $1.75 to $2. They did not give the mining officials time to consider the matter before undertaking a general strike. They visited the mines and stripping works at the Rust Mine and the employes quit work.

Later strike sympathizers attacked the night crew there. When they appeared they were ordered back, but continued to press forward. The workmen were armed with rifles and fired on the mob, killing two Finlanders and wounding others. The attacking party retreated to procure arms, and, according to the latest reports, were firing from the high banks on the strippers in the Rust Mine pit.

LYNN TEACHER LOSES TWO DIAMOND RINGS

LYNN, April 12.—Miss Mildred Davis, a teacher in the Ingalls Grammar School, has asked the assistance of the police to recover two valuable diamond rings which she says were stolen from her dressing room in the school building while she was washing her hands. One of the rings was an engagement ring.

BAY STATE TO PROBE SCANDAL IN EQUITABLE

Movement on Foot to Have Massachusetts Make Investigation of Society.

OTHER STATES TO ACT

As a result of the disclosures made in New York relative to the condition of the Equitable Life Assurance Society a movement is on foot, it is declared, to have the insurance departments of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Wisconsin make separate investigations of the workings of the company for the benefit of the policyholders in those States.

Such an examination in this State would come under the direction of State Insurance Commissioner Frederick L. Cutting, who is regarded as one of the best posted men on insurance matters in the country.

To Probe to Bottom.

The plan to have the company probed by outside States contemplates that they go to the very bottom of the matter, and show exactly what the management is. It is said that there are more than 400,000 policyholders of the company outside the State of New York.

Lessee wire dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN from New York state that Vice-President Gage E. Tarbell is not a stockholder of his own right in the society, in which he has started a movement to oust control from James Hazen Hyde, who owns a majority of the stock.

The last shares of stock by virtue of which Tarbell holds his place belong to Mr. Hyde outright. It was sure some months ago that he would not allow Mr. Hyde to use the Hyde estate as a "dummy."

Must Appear in Court.

Full disclosures of all Equitable disputes must be made soon in court under oath, as lawyers for all concerned are of the opinion that Justice Maddox of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, will grant the temporary injunction asked for by Charles B. Lord, to restrain revision of the charter.

If it is granted, President Alexander and Vice-President Hyde will have to get on the stand and tell all the secrets of the management of the company and defend their actions in the expenditure of the society's funds.

OLD MYSTERY CLEARED UP.

WEST GRANBY, Ct., April 12.—The mystery of the disappearance, twenty-seven years ago, of Lewis Case, a farmer, has been cleared up by Mrs. Case, who unveiled a piece of a shirt found on a skeleton found here with a piece of cloth cut of which she claimed the shirt was made. Case is supposed to have committed suicide by taking laudanum.

When the Boston curios get coming—and they'll come awful fast—For instance, when Utah and Bingham are racing neck and neck for 18, and—What's the use of enumerating them?—The history of Fitzgerald's Ashbed and Arnold, the Barron-Paine, Webber Playa d'Ora, the Jackson Santa Ysabel, the Sears Building Merced and the 3 C's Dredging will cover the present lot with simply a change of names—When these Boston chromos get coming, investors should take advantage of the general drop to buy Range, which will be going the other way, and speculators to buy Trinity, which will be going in the same direction as Range. The above advice won't whet either Wall Street's or State Street's appetite today, but cut it out and paste it up where you can read it later, at which time you will realize how appetizing it should have been.

JOHN L. IS AFTER SCALP OF MITCHELL

John L. Sullivan is after Mitchell. He explains his plans as follows in a letter from Green Bay, Wis.:

"Now Mitchell is in the country and nothing would suit me better than to put the gloves on with him for ten or fifteen rounds before I meet Jeffries, and the public will then have an opportunity, if we meet, to judge how far I have come back, if any.

"I can whip him to a moral certainty and no one knows it better than himself, and I will post $1,000 the night he accepts my proposition to box him and I will bet the last penny I have that I can beat him."

KELLEY WINS OVER CARTER

Special to the Boston American.

NEWMARKET, N. H., April 12.—Ralph Kelley, of Cambridge, Mass., was given the decision over Kid Carter, of Chelsea, Mass., at the conclusion of a twelve-round bout before the Riverside Athletic Club.

B. A. A. SCHOOL GAMES.

The annual gymnastic and athletic competition of the boy members of the B. A. A. will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

JIMMY BRITT FOR HIS NEXT RING OPPONENT MISTAKEN BY FRISCO CITIZENS JABEZ WHITE

BY TAD.

Jabez White is having an awful bunch of trouble in and about 'Frisco since he landed. Mr. White looks so much like James Britt, the man he meets this month, that wherever he goes people mistake him for the foxy Britt.

Along the line Jabez is stopped and hailed as James Edward. In the theatres they point him out as Britt, and the latter is often mistaken for the Englishman while on his strolls.

It will be a hard job for the referee to tell one from the other the night of the fight. The best way will be to tag each with a big number, then things would go smoothly.

The match itself has been knocked unmercifully in 'Frisco, and Battling Nelson is the ringleader in the hammer brigade. He has offered to put White out inside of ten rounds or forfeit $1,000. Up to date the match has not been made, but it won't do the Britt-White go a whole lot of good.

White will do his training at Larkspur, where Nelson has trained, and he says that there will be no trouble at all in making the weight. He denies that he will work behind closed doors, as was first sent out, and declares that the sports out there are welcome to watch him work and get a line on his punching powers.

Britt will go to the Seal Rock House, out on the beach, where the salt air will give him an appetite and make him feel like working. Tiv Kreling and Frank Rafael will train the Californian.

GUS RUHLIN AFTER BOUT WITH HART

NEW YORK, April 12.—Billy Madden is of the opinion that the only way that Marvin Hart can foster open interest with Jim Jeffries is by meeting his man, Gus Ruhlin. The "Akron Giant" has accordingly challenged the Southerner and is prepared to face Hart at either Baltimore or San Francisco at any time or in any place Hart sees fit.

"Hart should not ignore Ruhlin," says Madden, "because the pair have already met, and I think Gus is the better man. Then a match between the two would be a good test for Hart and would enable the public to get an excellent line on the qualities of Hart. Ruhlin is taller than Jeffries, has a long reach and is an honest heavyweight. Such a bout would attract a lot of folks who would want to see what Hart could do. If he succeeded in beating Ruhlin Hart would be in a fine position to force the champion into a match. I have sent a challenge personally to Hart, but up to now I have not heard from him. I'm sure that the California clubs will give the men a purse. Ruhlin is training now, so if this bout is arranged, it will not be long before the bout takes place."

Lanky Bob Fitzsimmons, Talking Fight, Calls CORBETT WORLD'S BEST BOXER

CHICAGO, April 12.—There is probably no fighter in the ring to-day that has engaged in so many battles as Bob Fitzsimmons. In a recent interview Fitzsimmons talked interestingly of some of his most important battle events. He said:

"I have been in the ring for seventeen years, have fought 365 battles, and lost two. This seems a fairly good record. Only one man ever beat me—James J. Jeffries, and I consider Jeffries the pugilistic marvel of the age. He has every advantage over the other heavyweight boxers, has strength, weight, skill and ring generalship, and is clearly in a class by himself.

"It is thirteen years since I won my first championship, defeating poor Jack Dempsey, long since dead, in thirteen rounds, out on the Pacific coast. This battle was regarded as easy for Dempsey.

"I had just landed from Australia, and did not look like a fighter. I have always had a peculiar physique with which to deal, appearing too splintery.

"But I know that this apparent fault has resulted in my winning so many battles as all my weight is in my shoulders and arms, the points which are of vital interest to a fighter.

Dempsey Great Fighter.

"Jack Dempsey was the middleweight champion of the world and one of the greatest fighters that ever lived. He had everything in the fighting line, not lacking a point of pugilistic ability. He was an Irishman, a wonderfully game, cranky, superb ring general and lightning fast.

"We fought for the middleweight championship, then held by Dempsey. This was in 1891. Dempsey weighed 154 pounds and I was but two pounds heavier.

"The battle is ring history. For twelve rounds the great and game Dempsey struggled against fate.

"I told him in the eleventh round to throw up the sponge, for I hated to punish a man of his caliber. His seconds begged to be allowed to end the battle, but Dempsey smiled grimly, remarked that he had seen other men take their medicine, and that he was going through with the battle at any cost.

Then Knocked Him Out.

"He was knocked out cold in the thirteenth round, and I was sorry to see him go. He never recovered from the defeat, and died of a broken heart. Out on the Oregon River there is now a grave, secluded in the solitude of the forests Dempsey loved so well.

"One of the proudest moments of my life was when I was asked to contribute something toward the fund for the support of the widow of my greatest and gamest opponent.

"Then for eight years I was called on to meet heavyweights and men weighing above 175 pounds. Middleweights of the Dempsey class were few and far between, and I never would face one for many who had defeated the once great champion. It was either a case of fighting the heavyweights or retiring, and as fighting was my business I chose the former course.

Calls Maher a Quitter.

"Perhaps the most memorable battle was with Peter Maher in New Orleans in 1892. Maher had come across the water from Ireland, hailed as the world's champion. He was met in New York by a delegation of men who were prepared to back him to the limit.

"We were matched to fight to a finish in New Orleans, and Maher quit in the twelfth round. He was not game—the only Irishman that I have ever saw who would not take a beating. He had fearful punching powers, and was big and strong, but as soon as I began to get to him he was attacked with fright and passed out of the ring.

"Four years later I fought Maher again, this time in Langtry, Texas. Peter still had the same old fear. We were using under clench-break rules, and he fouled me no less than four times in the first minute. He was disqualified for the second, and it was his law exposed for a second, and it was all over. I made about $12,000 in just nine-ty seconds, which, I guess, is laying it all over Mr. Morgan.

Fight With Corbett.

"The battle which created perhaps more interest than any similar affair of its kind ever held was the one at Carson City, Nevada, March 17, 1897, when James J. Corbett, then heavyweight champion of the world, and undoubtedly the cleverest boxer that the ring has ever known, and myself met for the championship. Corbett weighed 195 pounds, and was one of the most perfectly developed and proportioned athletes in the country. I weighed 158.

"Some people say to-day that it was a chance blow that laid out Corbett. Others say that the unexpected happened. Both are right, and yet both are wrong. I had to look for my chance to land that solar plexus blow.

"I invented the blow, figured it out and worked long hours in practicing it. Yet the unexpected happened, inasmuch as few people figured on me as getting through the perfect guard of Corbett.

Took Hard Beating.

"I knew that he could outbox me, but at the same time knew that I could outpunch him. I took a hard beating in the early part of the fight, but was always looking for that chance, having a few punches in reserve. Corbett was also looking for me to cut loose a punch. His seconds, his manager, Billy Brady, and all his friends were telling him to be careful.

"I saw my chance in the fourteenth round. I feinted with my left for his face. At the same time I worked the shift, the first time, I think, that it was ever worked. I then threw his guard up to his face, and swung my left over to the solar plexus. I knew the instant that the guard went up that the fight was as good as over.

"Jim Jeffries, Gus Ruhlin, Tom Sharkey, George Gardiner, Tom Coughlin and Jim Daly have all since been knocked out of the fistic field. I feel as young to-day as I ever did."

TERRY McGOVERN A PHYSICAL WRECK

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 12.—"Terrible Terry" is under constant guard of a male nurse, and his actions since his arrival at Hot Springs a few days ago have alarmed Congressman Tim Sullivan, who is a personal friend of the little fighter, to such an extent that it has been decided to send McGovern to some institution.

"Mac" a Physical Wreck.

Physicians who have examined the actions of Terry McGovern declare that McGovern, who is a physical wreck, must be sent to some institution where he can be cared for and receive proper treatment. When the show in which Terry McGovern takes the star part reached St. Paul a few days ago it was noticed that he was not speaking his lines correctly. His peculiar actions became so noticeable that the management was obliged to drop him from the cast temporarily, and he was sent to Hot Springs.

When it first learned that McGovern was in a bad way, the news came as a shock to those who were familiar with the little fighter. It was thought that he had a constitution of iron, and his rugged form could withstand any effort.

A Great Worker Once.

There was a time when McGovern was the greatest little worker who ever donned a glove. When training for a fight, he worked harder than any other fighter. His attendances often wondered how he could plug along continuously.

In fact, many were of the opinion that McGovern did too much work in his training quarters, and it was necessary at times for his manager, Sam Harris, to remain in the training quarters every night to keep watch on the little fighter and see that he did not overdo his training.

WANTS BRITT TO MEET GANS IN BALTIMORE

NEW YORK, April 12.—The unemployed boxer of reputation, if Al Herford has his way, will be taken care of in the future at Baltimore. Herford arrived in New York yesterday and said that he was prepared to hold any number of good bouts at Baltimore this Summer, and that he was here for the purpose of securing talent.

"I have secured the armory in Baltimore," declared Herford, "and have arranged two important matches already. The first takes place April 21, and will be between Tommy Daly and Aurelia Herrera, the Mexican. After that Benny Yanger will meet Kid Sullivan of Washington, who recently met Young Corbett. Then I am negotiating for a match between Owen Moran and some other good bantam for the first week in May. I have landed a bout between Jack O'Brien and Kid McCoy for fifteen rounds, which is to be held about the middle of next month.

"I think that Baltimore is the coming fighting center, and if any of the crack boxers want to appear there they can get engagements. I will arrange a purse of $5,000 with a privilege of 60 per cent. of the gate receipts for O'Brien and Tommy Ryan. But I don't think that Ryan wants any of O'Brien's game, and I am also prepared to give $15,000 for a twenty-round bout between Jimmy Britt and Joe Gans at 133 pounds ringside, the same as in their last encounter. Let no one deceive themselves about Gans not being able to get to 133 pounds. He can do so and will prove this any time. Tiring Gans and Battling Nelson will fight at Baltimore. At present I am arranging such a bout."

WILLIE "FITZ" WINS FIGHT

READING, April 12.—In the fourth of what was to have been a ten-round bout, Willie Fitzgerald of Brooklyn knocked out Tommy Connolly of Reading, at the Keenka Athletic Club.

YALE VARSITY CREW IS PRACTICALLY SELECTED FOR BIG HARVARD RACE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 12.—The Yale crew squad has just been cut down to 20 men, the last reduction which will be made till just before the oarsmen go to New London. Coach John A. Kennedy and Captain Dick Whittier plan to keep the oarsmen rowing as they are now, two varsity eights racing each other practically daily, and the other four members of the squad rowing in a four-oared shell, their numbers being drawn upon to supply any vacancy in the varsity or second eight in case any of the regular members is ill or called away for a day.

Plenty of racing is planned as practice for the oarsmen. They will chase each other down the twomile course on the Quinnipiac River several times a week and two or three times before they go to New London they will get over the four-mile course laid out on the harbor.

Rough water is expected most of the time during April, and it is not likely that much rowing will be possible on the harbor, the crews sticking to the Quinnipiac River. Should the weather there be a chance to get out beyond the Tomlinson breakwater for a head work-out, with the crews on a calm afternoon, the advantage will be seized by Kennedy and Whittier.

Short Races Planned.

No two-mile spins have yet been taken, but races of this length will be tried this week. The shortening process which Coach Kennedy has put in commission and is regularly used for coaching purposes.

The freshman eight will later be used in racing practice with the varsity crews. Head Coach Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., of the freshmen has been assisted by Kennedy and Whittier of the varsity coaching staff. The Blue crew will be much improved this year, according to present indications, and it is planned to start them right, for there will be four or five vacant places in the varsity shell to fill before another year.

In the short races held this Spring the varsity has had little trouble in pulling away from the substitute eight. Last week the crews were well balanced and the short races were red hot events, and some times the second eight won.

The only change in the Yale coaching system this year is that there is no recent graduate for a head coach. As a graduate adviser Julian W. Curtiss, '78, of New York city, renders an invaluable service to the crew, but Kennedy is in full charge of the coaching for the first time.

Makeup of Varsity.

The makeup of the varsity eight is regarded as settled by those who are close to the crew. That is, it is generally believed that the best eight men have been found for the varsity branches, although Captain Whittier and Kennedy are closely watching the substitute oarsmen for dark horses, but there has been no real change in the eight since it left the gymnasium, and it is a two to one shot that three will be found in the races on the Thames.

The six veterans of last year's varsity eight are back in the shell, every man rowing in tip-top condition. Morse, who was moved from No. 3 to No. 7, is the best stroke for the starboard oars, is pulling an excellent stroke and bids fair to be a fixture there.

The men in the shell who have succeeded to Captain Cross and Miller, who were graduated in June, are Chase, at No. 5, and Kinsey, at No. 2. Both are oarsmen of the first class type, have their shell evidently sure, Chase tipping the scales at 158, Kinsey at 187. Chase was booked for the boat last year, but was taken out by the faculty the day the crew left for New London.

Kinsey's Good Record.

Kinsey is a class oarsman. He has been making a fine record for a year as an all-round Yale athlete. He was one of the best football tackles in the East last Fall and has been captain of the Yale Gun Club. Gun Daly, at No. 2, and Weeks, at bow, have been sick considerable this Spring, but have been back in the shell for two weeks, pulling a fine stroke. The recent earnest on the varsity squad are distributed as follows at present:

Varsity—Strokes, Morse; No. 2, Morse; No. 3, Captain Whittier; No. 4, Chase; No. 5, Reed; No. 6, Kinsey; No. 7, Cross; bow, Daly; coxswain, Kratchouell.

Second Eight—Stroke, Boulton; No. 7, Low; No. 6, Higgins; No. 5, Bloomer; No. 4, Bonserero; No. 3, Hall; No. 2, Hurtle; bow, Riley; coxswain, Hosier.

Second Eight—Cross, Strokes, Defens; No. 3, Greg; No. 2, Hurtle; bow, Atkins.

TENNIS AT HARVARD

The fifteenth annual tournament of the Harvard interscholastic lawn tennis championship in singles will be held on Jarvis Field, Cambridge, May 8, and Monday, May 9. First and runner-up prizes will be given, also a champion shield to the school which wins the greatest number of points, each match normally won counting as one point.

The winner of the tournament will also have the right, as Harvard interscholastic champion for 1905, to play at Newport in August, for the national interscholastic championship of United States.

$20,000 FOR YANKEE CONSUL.

MEMPHIS, April 12.—Charles Gilson today sold the soft Yankee Consul to "Bud" Mayer, acting for William M. Schiefel, the New York turfman, for $20,000. Yankee Consul, by Semphinal-Lady Ilex, is considered the crack two-year-old horse here. He is heavily engaged in the Eastern stakes.

O'ROURKE TO MEET GUNTHER

Charlie O'Rourke and George Gunther, the Melbourne Kangaroo, have been matched to meet at Lawrence on April 24. Gunther has already accepted a match with Jack Blackburn of Philadelphia at Marlboro on April 19. They are to go fifteen rounds to a decision.

GIANT O'NEIL DISCHARGED.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Edward McLaughlin, manager of the Emeralds, of the Catholic Protectory; William Cunningham, Charles Williams and "John O'Neil," who were arrested at the game between the Giants and the Emeralds, were discharged by Magistrate Breen holding that no violation of the Sunday law had been committed.

JOHNSTON LOST PRIVATE BOUT

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 12.—"Kid" Everett of New York knocked out Walter Johnston of Philadelphia in the sixth round of a fight which was scheduled to go to a finish near this city.

MAY RIDE FOR WHITNEY.

Washington, April 8.—The presence of Herman R. Duryea at the Bennings track gave rise to a story to the effect that Jockey Willie Shaw will do the riding for Harry Payne Whitney this season. Shaw rode the Whitney horses last season when they raced in the name and colors of Duryea, but later had to play second fiddle to Hildebrand, who had been engaged by the stable when it was seen that he was rid ing in good form.

BIKERS TRAIN AT REVERE

Some fast track work is being cut out by the bikers at the Revere track in preparation for the big race meet on Patriot's Day. All the prominent riders like to make a good impression at the opening of the season and are doing spins for that purpose. Louis Mettling, the ex-schoolboy rider, is showing great form and he is always popular with the fans in the races against the big fellows. Harry Hunter and Bill Stinson are equally zealous in making the parties they have got to ride to stay with Mettling. The contests are very busy getting plans for the events on the card.

Leigh, Downey and McKinnon in the "pro" ranks there will be something doing for the rest of the month.

B. U. VS. HOLY CROSS.

The Boston University nine will open its season with a game with Holy Cross College at Worcester this afternoon.

BASEBALL NEWS OF THE BIG LEAGUES BOXING JOHN L. IS AFTER MITCHELL RACING AND ALL ATHLETI

CHAMPS TO FACE 'RUBE' ON FRIDAY

GREAT CONTEST EXPECTED

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—When Collins's Boston boys reach the Columbia Ball Park in this city Friday they will receive an ovation for surpassing anything ever accorded them. Every preparation possible has been made for their reception, and no detail which lends importance to the opening game of the season, either from the viewpoint of the enthused fan or the bleacherite, has been omitted.

Official Philadelphia will be there, and every department of the municipal government will be represented to see Mayor Weaver toss the ball from the upper pavilion the ample and thus launch the first game of a season of many.

Band Will Enliven Occasion.

Besides city election the military will be represented by the First Regiment Band, which will be present to enliven the occasion. But these are mere incidents when it is remembered that McNeely's "leather rooters" will be there, five hundred strong, with a band of their own.

The Boston rooter have that no first game is complete without McNeely's men. Never have they failed to attend a season-opener since the organization of the American League Club in Philadelphia.

The biggest crowd on record is anticipated by the local management, which is entirely due to the popularity of the Boston players in this city, for, as the Boston men probably know, Philadelphia sports has had a tender spot for the Bostoners.

The aggregate number of enthusiasts who will come to see the boys of the sphere during the Bostonians' weekend stay is placed at 40,000, and if the weather is what baseball weather should be, some of the old sports claim that the figure will come closer to 50,000.

An all-round close contest is anticipated Despite Connie Mack's statement that his men are hardly up to date with the willows, the Athletics are indefinite in better condition than they have ever been at the beginning of a season.

Mack Hopes for Improvement.

Manager Mack says, however, that he hopes for improvement in the batting of the team, stating that the sitting of the men in the preliminary games has been rather light. All the pitchers are in good condition, and in view of their splendid shape no trouble whatever is anticipated from the box. Weddell, Bender, Plank and Coakley are Mack's twirlers, and local fans declare each of them is in for a big season condition.

But the Philadelphia people know that Jimmy Collins's team has also been South, and the knowing ones declare that anything short of championship form can be expected in them. They assert that Friday, Saturday and Monday's encounters between the two teams will be close ones and epoch-makers as season openers.

The game will be called at 3:30, and, although Manager Mack says he has not fully decided upon the battery for the game, it is believed by those in close touch with the management that the batting order will be as follows: Harisel, c.; Hoffman, l. f.; Bertke, 2b.; Cross, 3b.; Seybold, r. f.; Murphy, 2b.; M. Cross, t. s.; Waddell, p.; Schreck, c.

CHAMPS AFTER LOSING TO NASHVILLE PLAY AGAINST PORKTOWN REDS FOR THE LAST TIME TO-DAY

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL,

Boston American Staff Correspondent With the Champion American League Team.

CINCINNATI, April 12.—The Champs were not required to work to-day, as Collins wanted them to save all their energy for Joe Kelley and his tribe this afternoon. Besides the boys have been putting in the last three nights in sleeping cars, and this has never been known as a strength producer.

The players were not required to work to-day as Collins wanted them to save all their energy for Joe Kelley and his tribe this afternoon. Besides the boys have been putting in the last three nights in sleeping cars, and this has never been known as a strength producer.

All hands will be glad to strike a comfortable hotel bed in Philadelphia to-morrow night. But there is yet one more night to be spent in a sleeper. The boys want to win from the Reds to-day, of course, but if they lose they cannot get any the worst of the strokes, counting the three games in Jacksonville, as things will stand as a tie.

This is the first time the Boston American League Club has ever played in Cincinnati. This is the first time those wonderful players, Parent and Ferris, have ever shown here. There is an uncommon amount of interest manifested by Porktown fans in the appearance of these renowned players, and it goes without saying that Freddie and Hobe are more than anxious to make good in the first, whatever they may do at the bat.

Collins would not allow Parent to play at Nashville yesterday, as his back still troubled him, but Freddie has a large chance here with him to-day, and unless Collins interferes again he will be in uniform. Stahl, who was out of the game at Montgomery on account of a sore hip, was again in harness at Nashville, to the delight of his team-mates, and knocked out two corking singles in three times at bat.

Everybody wants to see the man who led the team in batting last season strike his old gait. Up to the Nashville game he had been doing very little with the stick. If he has found his eye at last, it will mean a good deal to the team when the season opens up.

Freeman kept up his excellent stick work in the Nashville game, hitting for two doubles in three ups. Nine or ten innings would have been good for a homer if the right field embankment had not stopped it.

Unglaub has shown himself a player of the first water in the last two games, when he took the place of Parent. In the Montgomery game he made a double and a single in four times up, and yesterday he hit for three bases and again for two bases in four times at bat. His fielding at Nashville was wonderfully good. His practice with Collins, Parent, Ferris and Lischenoe on the trip has made a new man of him, and all the players now have confidence in his ability, which is more than they had last year.

The unfortunate ending to the Nashville game was widely discussed on the way to Cincinnati. Reisenger, whose leg was broken, came from Butte. He had been catching good ball up to the time of the accident.

Reisenger's Ankle Snapped.

Unglaub was on third with one out. Collins put up a high foul back of first base and as soon as the ball was caught Unglaub started for home. He got there with the ball, but as the ball was thrown high Reisenger had to jump for it. Unglaub got around him and as the catcher came down to earth he landed on his ankle.

The bone snapped just above the ankle with a crack that could be heard all over the grandstand. The players rushed to his assistance and an ambulance was summoned.

Umpire Mullane made no decision at the time and everybody thought that Unglaub was safe, and that the score was tied. When half an hour later the game was called the umpire announced that, "in view of the deplorable accident," he would call Unglaub out. Some of the Boston newspaper men sent in the score as a 10s, 4-3, while others stood by the umpire. The score of the game against Nashville was:

Hit by pitched ball—By Herman, 1; struck out—By O'Brien, 2; by Herman, 3. Double plays—O'Brien, Unglaub and Lischenoe; Lally and Reisenger. Umpire—Mullane. Time 1:50. Attendance—500.

NOTES OF THE PLAYERS.

Grimshaw got no chance to whack the ball when he batted for O'Brien, as he walked. A moment later he was caught napping.

The umpire got rattled and called five balls against Stahl in the first inning.

When Freeman came to the bat the fighting Tennessee half-way up the embankment back of his position. Evidently he had been reading the New Orleans newspapers.

Showers fell from noon until the game was started, and this kept down the attendance.

YALE FIELD, NEW HAVEN, April 12.—After having three games postponed, Yale made another attempt to play a baseball game, this time Brown, but rain threatened all day. Bell and Jackson were down to pitch for Yale. Bell is just recovering from his attack of blood poisoning.

This was the second game of the season for the Brown nine. Last Saturday they defeated the College of the City of New York by the score of 12 to 0. Last year Yale defeated Brown in the three games of the series by the following scores: April 20, 19 to 1; May 8, 10 to 1; May 30, 3 to 0.

'FRISCO PERMIT STILL TIED UP

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—The fight is still on between Coffroth and Levy for the April fight permit and the deadlock in the board of supervisors is unbroken.

Charles Mitchell said to-day: "It looks like a silly dog in the manger affair to me. Jabez White will certainly be ready to fight on the 25th of this month, and I had hoped the permit question would be settled at once, which would have left nothing to do but decide on a referee."

NATIONALS WIN EASY VICTORY OVER ORIOLES

Special to the Boston American.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 12.—Old Jupiter Pluvius took a hand in the contest between the Boston Nationals and the local Eastern Leaguers, and the game was called at the end of Baltimore's half of the sixth inning, with the score 7 to 1 in favor of the visitors. Boston put up a pretty game in the field, two fielding double plays being the features of their powerful work. The home batters unfortunately and took advantage of the locals' several slipups.

SCHOOL TENNIS MAY 6-8.

The fifteenth annual tournament for the Harvard interscholastic tennis championship in singles will be held on Jarvis Field, Cambridge, May 6 and 8.

WALTHOUR DUE HERE ON FRIDAY

Bobby Walthour, the Southern flyer back of motor pace, telegraphed his willingness to Everett E. Damon to ride at Charles River Park on April 20. He will leave immediately for the North and will arrive in Boston, Friday. He will bring with him Gussie Lawson, the little Swede, for a pacemaker.

Against Walthour in this opening race of the season will be pitted his brother conspirator in the mutiny at the New York six-day race, Jimmy Moran of Chelsea, and Nat Butler of Cambridge. It will be for thirty miles.

DE ORO WILL NOT GIVE UP TROPHY

Special to the Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, April 12.—Although the title of champion was conferred on Jerome Keogh of Buffalo by the donor of the championship emblem, which Alfred De Oro won at the Broadway, the latter still claims to be the pool champion of the world. De Oro states, that he will not turn over his championship to the Buffalo man under any consideration, as demanded by the donors of the trophy. He says in the firm announcement that it will keep his forfeit money he will use them to recover the same.

"The only title that I claim is champion of the world," said De Oro. "The trophy which I won in the Broadway tournament in which I defeated Keogh plainly states 'champion of the world.'

"Yet Keogh challenged me to play under American championship rules. I told him that I would play him in Havana, Cuba. He did not accept. I see that they have appointed him champion of America. He can have that title if he wants it. I am champion of the world, though. I won all my emblems with pocket, and none by default.

"Keogh won't get my trophy. I would be in a great fix if I went to Europe and allowed some one else to defend my title of champion. According to the Buffalo theory I would have to play every anybody that posts a forfeit.

"I know that I can defeat Keogh. If he wants a match I will give him a chance to play for the world's championship, which I hold. As the game is for the world's championship, I think that I have a perfect right to name the place where the match is to be played, which I did—Havana, Cuba. To satisfy Keogh, however, I will play him in St. Louis or some other city. Let him come over and try to win the championship, for he will never get my emblem by default."

NEW LONDON RACE PLANS

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, April 12.—Another Yale-Harvard conference has been held to settle the plans for the races on the Thames, June 29.

The scheme to hold all three events in the morning has been adopted. The first race, that of the varsity fours, will be rowed, starting from the upper end of the course, down stream at 9 o'clock in the morning. This will finish at the Navy Yard and the freshman eight race will then be immediately begun. The varsity eight match will be rowed down stream at 10:30 o'clock, finishing at the drawbridge.

In case of postponement the two minor races will be rowed up stream at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the varsity eight race at 6 o'clock.

SMALL TALK FOR BASEBALL FANS

Jack Doyle of last year's Philadelphia National League club, has been signed to play first base for Toledo. President Grillo bought his release and Doyle accepted the terms offered. He will join the club at once.

It comes straight from the Windy City that Jimmy Callahan, the ex-Fitchburg boy, is to grace the bench and Jiggs Donahue plays the first bag. Jimmy is too good a man to let stay out of the game.

Big Jim Wiggs, no relation of the celebrated hieroglyc of the rubbage patch, who pitched such great ball for New Orleans last season, and who was drafted by Brooklyn, is still at New Orleans, practicing with the Pelicans. He refuses to fall in the Superbas and for very good reason. Hanlon has offered him $40 a month less than he can get from any number of independent teams. Wiggs came from Butte three years ago to pitch for Charley Nichol and was released, as he could not field his position. In the only game he pitched for the Reds the Chicago Colts made seven runs without knocking the ball outside the diamond. Wiggs finally spiking himself in the hand trying to field a bunt. He went back then to the Northwest and was later bought by New Orleans, for whom he pitched sensational ball, also learning how to field his position.

"I will not sign a contract with the Pittsburg club to play with the team an entire season, but I may accept a position in case of emergency." This statement was made by Ernest Diehl, the all-round athlete of the Cincinnati gymnasium. "Mr. Dreyfuss has treated me kindly, and is desirous to have me on his team, but I have no desire to leave the amateur ranks. Recently Mr. Dreyfuss inclared on me joining the team. I told him then that any time he needed me for a few days, I would give him my services without charge."

When Smith came to Chicago straight darn he will be nearly ripe for Jeffries.

BEVERLY HAS STRONG TEAM

Beverly will have one of the fastest semi-professional baseball nines in this part of the country this season. Madden, the old Holyoke High School pitcher, will again be managers, and Beverly being his native town, his friends anticipate a successful season. An excellent schedule is now under way, and some of the important games have been booked.

The team opens April 19 with Manchester (New England League) team. Haverhill New England League is scheduled for June 17, morning, and Tufts varsity for June 10. Wakefield, Lynn New England, Lynn association, Olneyville, Fitchburg, Murray Hills of New York, Union ex-Giants and other crack aggregations are under consideration for the schedule, and Doering of Beverly, late with Detroit, New York Americans and Toledo, will pitch for Beverly against Manchester.

COUNTRY CLUB HORSE SHOW

Entry lists for the Country Club Horse Show have been issued. The feature of the show will be the exhibition of horses in harness, which will include every type and hitch in the roadster class, four-in-hands, road and park coaching teams, and the hunters and jumpers.

Prizes amounting to $7,775 are offered, of which the plate prizes amount to $2,025. Entries close Saturday, May 6.

Amateur Baseball Notes.

With the baseball season about here amateur teams are looking for games to carry them through to the end of the season. The BOSTON AMERICAN will publish all challenges sent to the Amateur Baseball Editor. This promises to be a banner year in amateur baseball circles, therefore every manager should complete schedule early, and this is the best medium.

CARNIVAL FOR MOTOR BOATS

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Plans are under way for a national motor boat carnival on the Hudson River this season. The matter is in the hands of a committee composed of Henry R. Sutphen, J. S. Bunting, A. Masdnat and S. J. Matthews. There will be a trophy provided which is to be contested for annually. The last week in June or the second week in July will be the time for the races, which will be open to members of any yacht club in the United States.

On the evening of the last day there will be a fleet illumination. The races will consist of reliability, endurance, long distance and speed contests.

WOMEN BARRED FROM BETTING ON HORSES

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Metropolitan race tracks, following in the wake of the Empire City tracks, will do away with the grand stand betting commissioners and thus put an end to the placing of bets on the horses by women patrons of the tracks.

Complaints against dishonest commissioners have reached the ears of the racing officials. At an informal meeting of several prominent turfmen last week it was decided to abolish the system.

The men who favor this departure from the long-established system are said to be August Belmont, president of the racing commission; John Sanford and E. R. Morgan, associate commissioners; James R. Keene, H. K. Knapp, Philip J. Dwyer, Herman Duryea, Andrew Miller, James K. Fosbanabee, Sydney Paget, E. G. Glimore, Clarence Mackay, E. R. Thomas and, in fact, every leading racing man in the East.

The experiment will be inaugurated with the opening of the season at Aqueduct on Saturday next.

WHAT IS THE FUNNIEST THING BABY EVER SAID

DAY by day the Bright Sayings contest gains in popularity. The contest is proving the most popular and interesting ever conceived, Greater Boston has "taken to it" like the proverbial duck to the water.

What a flood of memories are awakened by these bits of wisdom "out of the mouths of babes!" If there were no daily prize of a half-dozen splendid, large photographs of your child, the mere pleasure of recording your baby's cleverest saying would be sufficient reward. Wouldn't it?

Make your letters short. Write on one side of the paper. Address your letters to the Bright Sayings Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, 80-82 Summer street, Boston.

The "sayings" will be judged by a committee of award, composed of three men and three women of conspicuous prominence in Boston. You may be sure their decision will be just and impartial.

The Committee of Award:

HON. WILLIAM M. OLIN, Secretary of State.
HEZEKIAH BUTTERWORTH, author.
JOHN D. FITZPATRICK, lawyer and former president of the Clover Club.
KATE GANNETT WELLS, of the State Board of Education.
MISS KATHERINE CONWAY, editor of the Pilot.
MRS. JULIA E. DUFF, member of the Boston School Committee.

DOES IMAGINATION FLY?

Ethel, my little girl of five, after going up bed one evening, thought she heard some one in her room. She called to me, and I told her it was imagination.

"Imagination!" she said in fright, "what's that?"

I explained and she was much relieved. A few nights afterward she called again. Being tired, I said:

"That's Imagination again." She said: "Oh, no, it ain't; it's flying round." It was a big moth, mildet.

TWO STORIES IN HEAVEN

"Mamma, is there another sky above that sky?" Mamma said:

"No. Why?"

"Well," she said, "if there was, when heaven was crowded God could send some of them upstairs, couldn't he?"

"GOD'S FIRE"

My little boy Walter, four years of age, upon a Sunday morning heard the church bells ringing. He saw lots of people going to church. Turning to his father he asked:

"Daddy, why don't you go to God's fire?"

MRS. T. A. KELLEY,
No. 159 Broadway, Everett.

LIKE MOTHER GOOSE

My little sister, three years old, who started attending kindergarten, was asked one day:

"Florence, how do you like your teacher?"

She replied: "I like her very well. She is like Mother Goose—she has so many children she don't know what to do."

MISS MARTHA AARON,
No. 621 East Eighth street, South Boston.

TWO KINDS OF CORN

When my little boy Harold, aged four, was eating his supper tonight I asked him if he would have some corn. He said:

"O mamma, don't give me corn; it might make corns grow on my toes."

MRS. ALICE BOURQUE,
No. 59 Seventh street, Cambridge.

A PUZZLER

A short time ago my little son Herbert, age 6, was playing with a little friend. After a while they began to disagree over a fire engine. His grandmother who was in the next room called him to her and said:

"Don't you know that it is not pretty for small children to dispute?"

He thought awhile and said: "Why should I not dispute? Jesus had to read out last night about Christ in the Temple disputing with the doctors!"

MRS. GRACE LORING,
No. 343 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury.

SAW STARS

One starlight night my little girl Lina, three years old, was gazing into the sky when she suddenly exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, come and see the Lord's eyes."

"SAY CANDY, MAMMA"

When I was teaching my little daughter, three years old, to say the Lord's Prayer, I would say a sentence and she would repeat it after me. When I came to "Give us this day our daily bread," she said:

"Oh, say candy, mamma, say candy."

MRS. STINSON,
No. 5984½ Tremont street, Roxbury.

A LITTLE SMITH

My little boy, five years old, was in his papa's blacksmith shop, keeping the flies off a horse his pa was shoeing. A man came in and said:

"What? Learning the blacksmith trade, my little man?"

"Yes, sir," he replied. "Papa is shoeing horses and I am shooing flies."

MRS. G. L. PERKINS,
No. 6 Mt. Pleasant street, Somerville.

NO SECOND SIGHT

One stormy day a short while ago my little boy, not quite three years old, hearing the wind whistle, asked me:

"What makes that noise, mamma?"

On being told the wind, he, looking searchingly out the window and exclaimed: "I can't see it."

The same day he asked if he might go out, and, being told he could not because it rained, said:

"Can't I go out when the rain goes home, mamma?"

MRS. MARGARET E. KELLY,
No. 24 Topliff street, Dorchester.

INSECTS FOR INCENSE

While out walking with my little sister one day, we happened to pass the Episcopal Church when she asked:

"Do they burn insects in that church?" (She, of course, meant incense.)

W. E. HOLHAM,
125 West street, Hyde Park.

AVOIDING DANGER

Hazel, not quite four years old, fell to the brook and got her feet wet. She went over and told her grandma, and grandpa asked her if she had told mamma. She answered, in a surprised way:

"What? Tell mamma and get a whipping?" MRS. C. GOLDEN,
No. 253 Nahant street, Wakefield.

TOLD THE TRUTH

A short while ago my little sister, Dorothy, was apparently doing something when my aunt asked her: "Dorothy, what have you on your mouth?" She looked at her and replied in all seriousness:

"My tongue." MARCUS B. SELIG,
No. 5 Houghton street, Dorchester.

THOUGHTFUL OF HER

While sitting at the window one evening with my little boy, Willie, four years old, the moon was shining brightly just over a roof where a woman was taking in her clothes. My little boy said:

"Mamma, I guess that lady put that light there so she could see to get her clothes."

Could Any Woman Dress Like This on $65 a Year?---Hardly

Mr. Atkinson Has No Regard for Fashions

By Eleanor Ames

Copyright by I.S.D. 1904

WHAT difference does the size of sleeves make in the comfort of a garment?" asks Edward Atkinson. Mr. Atkinson declares that a woman can dress comfortably well on $65 a year.

"I know she can," he says emphatically when I called on him yesterday. "I know those who do."

"How?" I asked innocently. Mr. Atkinson looked bored. I imagine he thought it was a silly question.

"By judicious buying," he answered. "A woman who wants to make the most of her $65 wants to look for advantageous sales for bargains.

"She can get last year's garments for much less than she would pay for the newest models, and they are quite as warm. A woman cannot be distinctly fashionable on that sum, but she can dress plainly and neatly and be comfortable. What more does she need?"

Mr. Atkinson's much discussed statement grew out of an address which he made before the Council of Jewish Women on "The Cost of Living for Working Women."

He declared that any working woman could dress as well and as comfortably as she needed to for from $65 to $80 a year. He also said that she could have all the good, plain, nourishing food that she needed with some luxuries on $1.25 a week.

This last statement was based on the supposition that several girls clubbed together and shared living expenses.

"If half a dozen women who are perfectly harmonious and congenial can live together, they can reduce the individual living cost very materially," he told me. Then he added, with a twinkle: "The first part of that proposition is the difficult problem."

But to go back to the subject of dressing a woman on $65 a year. Mr. Atkinson has in his employ three intelligent, sensible young women, whom he asked to make out a list of necessary clothing for four years. These lists were sent to various department stores, the prices being set down by the dealers. The average sum was $65 a year.

For that sum, it is taken for granted, that a woman is clever with her needle. She trims her own hats, she makes some of her clothing, she does her own repairing.

She is in the front ranks of the bargain seekers. And besides, in order to do this, Mr. Atkinson says she must have the "gumption and intelligence to know how to spend her money advantageously."

By following the plan of having a club or community of housekeeping, Mr. Atkinson declares that $260 to $300 will provide a woman with shelter, food, clothing and incidentals for a year.

He says he knows plenty of women who do not spend more than that sum each year. "And they are fine, intelligent women," he added.

If he really can teach women to live on $1.25 a week and dress on $65 a year he will become the greatest benefactor of the age.

Women do not like to spend every cent they earn in order to live, and any way to avoid such a necessity would cause their hearts to overflow with gratitude.

HERE is an apparently modest costume, such as has been seen frequently on the streets of Boston during the last few months. The outer garments can be bought for the modest sum of $53?. The hat, an approved, but not by any means an excessively costly Parisian design, costs about three-quarters of the $65 which Edward Atkinson says is enough money to clothe any woman for a year. The feminine pouf, not at all an extravagance for the woman of fashion, costs enough money to dress the modest woman for nearly a year and a half—according to Mr. Atkinson. Yet there is nothing so very unusual about this costume. It is simple, and only such as many Back Bay women wear every day in the week.

By Beatrice Fairfax

More Women Are Starving for the Love of Their Husbands Than for the Mere Daily Bread

ONE of the bitterest lessons a woman ever learns is the impossibility of reviving the ashes of a dead love into an ardent flame.

She cannot realize the fact that when a man has outgrown his love for her, that love is as dead as though it had never existed.

The fever has burned itself out; the ashes are cold, lifeless, and he feels taught save impatience for the woman who strives to rouse a spark from its depths.

When a woman's love dies it is because one man kills it; when a man's love dies it is because he kills it himself.

If a woman were given the choice between the man she loved and her personal ambition she would not hesitate for one instant in choosing the former, while a an almost invariably sacrifices his love to his ambition.

When a woman of fifty meets a man she loved her when she was twenty, she feels a thrill of the old sweetness, and wonders if he remembers and hopes she is looking her best, and that he wont think she has changed much.

He may be fat and bald, surrounded by a wife and seven children, but she sees him as the slim, young lover of thirty years ago.

She remembers every incident of their love, but she makes a great mistake if she expects him to remember.

He mixes her up with half a dozen other bygone sweethearts.

He only sees in her a middle-aged woman, and doesn't care a pin whether she thinks him changed or not.

Some way or other I am always sorry for women.

A woman wants so much and has to be satisfied, with so little.

She wants love more than anything on earth, and she never gets quite as much as she wants. There is always a crumpled leaf in her rose.

It is curious that a woman who will show intense pride in most situations will be lacking in it when it comes to a question of her love for a man.

She will humble herself, put up with slights, neglect, ill-treatment even, covering all the mean's brutalities with the charity of her pitiful woman's love.

More women starve for love than for bread.

A man may be an excellent husband as to doing and providing all his wife's needed comforts, may be generous, kind, good-natured, and yet the wife's heart may be slowly starving just for a little love.

A woman can't take love on faith; she must have constant proof that the love exists or she becomes a prey to doubt.

Unfortunately this longing on the woman's part is apt to prove too much of a strain on the man's love.

He thinks she should take his love for granted, and that she can never do, and so the trouble begins.

Surely nature was in her most contrary mood when she decreed that man and woman, loving each other so much, should understand each other so little.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

First Aid To The Lovelorn

EDITOR WOMAN'S PAGE:

I have been keeping company with a young gentleman. We had a quarrel, which was my fault. About two weeks ago he gave me a watch chain as a present, after the quarrel I told him that he could have his watch chain back, also his picture. He did not say anything at the time, but the day after he sent a messenger boy to my house, stating that he was obliged to take the presents back. I refused to give the presents to the boy, and at evening he called on me and saw me himself, and I told him that I would rather throw the pictures out in the street than give them back to him. He said good-night to me and went away. Now, do you think I have done wrong, and have I got a right to keep the presents after I broke his friendship, which was all my own fault?

WORRIED.

AS the presents were given to you, I suppose in the strictest sense of the word you have a right to them, but if you have a spark of pride you will send them back at once. Surely you would not want to keep them after he asked to have them back. I advise you to send them back at once. If the fault of the quarrel was yours, I think you should apologize in an apology might straighten the difficulty out.

EDITOR WOMAN'S PAGE:

About six months ago I met a young lady, and she loves me deeply, and I love her, but all my spare object to me coming to the house, and her two brothers are very angry at me also. At present I am making $40 per month, and expect to soon raise me to a year's time. I haven't a thing saved, and I expect to be married two more years, but she claims it is too long to wait. In the first place, do not urge her to marry you against the will of her entire family, if you will wait a year or so they may change their attitude toward you, especially if you show yourself deserving. In the second place, is your salary large enough? I think it would be much wiser to wait until you have saved a little before you marry.

SCARLET LIES

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Holland visits Commonwealth avenue residence of Roger Armstrong, millionaire steel magnate. He finds millionaire's only daughter, Mary, and before his host arrives confession is humbled to her. When Stephen announces engagement to girl's father he is astounded at discovering Mercer Bach, a Jewish financier, a secret enemy of Armstrong. Bach, Holland learns, wishes girl to marry himself. Judge Holland, Stephen's father, has written letter stating Holland has no right to name. Stephen receives letter from Bach stating he has in his possession proofs of both documents.

JUDITH opened the gold purse which Darch was carrying and took out a slip of paper.

"Here's a check for five thousand dollars," she said, as she held it out toward him, but did not put it into his hand. "Surely, it is what you do every day," she said scornfully, "it is your business. What is the name of the circus?"

"Revelle's Circus, madam," he said. "You may rely on my best services." He held out his hand, and his fingers closed lovingly on the check.

Judith sat upright.

"The man?" she asked."The son?"

"Is George Lang, the famous lion tamer."

"A lion tamer!" Her voice was shrill. "Do you know," she said, leaning toward Mr. Holland wanted with these people?"

Bruine surveyed her with an innocent smile.

"I believe, madam," he said, in his most purring voice, "that it was a question of a legacy that Mr. Holland's father had left to the man, George Lang, who had been his servant in Africa.

He showed her out of the office himself. A moment after the second door of his room opened and Morley Darch was ushered in. He was very stodgy to the point of [illegible]. "Mr. [illegible] he began, in his soft and rather emotional voice. "I have heard of you as a man who is absolutely to be trusted, and who does not shrink from the most delicate and difficult tasks."

The two men looked keenly at each other. Each saw in the other's face great strength, great daring and absolutely unscrupulousness.

"It will be perfectly frank," continued the financier, "relying entirely on your professional secrecy. I have a little business for me something against Robert Armstrong."

Bruline gave vent to a sharp exclamation, which he immediately checked.

"That is indeed a most startling request, Mr. Darch," he said. "Mr. Armstrong is a man beloved and respected by every one, the soul of commercial honor."

"I know all that," interrupted Darch impatiently. "I have told you what I want. Will you undertake it?"

"It's a most delicate, even dangerous, thing," mused the detective, with his eyes on his writing table. "I don't say I couldn't do it. I suppose there is no living man who has not something in his past life that could be brought up against him. As the senior Mr. Armstrong, who knew Robert Armstrong, it would take a deal of finding. I imagine, besides, exposing no serious risks. I am afraid, Mr. Darch"—he looked at his client with a compassionate gesture—

"I am ready to pay a big price," said Darch bluntly. "If you will undertake it I will give you five thousand dollars down for expenses, and on the day when you give me a piece of information that is of use to me I will give you twenty thousand. What do you say?"

"I suppose you want this information for the purposes of blackmail?" suggested the detective.

"If you choose to call it that name," he said, with some embarrassment, "I have always spoke plainly here," said Bruline drily.

"Will you do it? This is the point."

"I am not going to say that I will think. It is too important a thing. I must have time to think. You may have my answer—I will call at the same time," said Morley Darch, rising, "I suppose you will be ready. I am a busy man. Good morning."

Bruline saw the financier to the door. He walked back to the office where his visitor had gone, stroking his chin thoughtfully.

"Queer that he should have come to me," he mused. "Of course, seeing that there are only two living men in the world who could tell him something serious against Robert Armstrong, and I am one of them."

He opened a drawer, and took out the other two checks—Holland's and Judith Mott's. He sat and looked at them, and his eyes glistened.

"Fifteen thousand dollars!" he murmured. "Not bad. Three geese, and they all lay golden eggs."

CHAPTER XXXV.

"The Shadows Flee Away."

THE rosy tea hour was at hand. In Mary Armstrong's boudoir in the great house on Commonwealth avenue the white velvet curtains were drawn, shutting out the raw and cheerless twilight. The fire burned cheerily, and the electric light to filter through their soft folds in a subdued radiance; a bright fire burned in the white tiled open hearth. Here and there were patches of light on the gleaming beaten silver of the low fender, on the soft, white rugs that lay on the parquet floor, on the beautiful carved ivory of the chair backs and on the lovely face of Mary, as she lounged gracefully on a pile of cushions in front of the fire.

Her face was the face of one who dreams. Not a sound broke the stillness. The room was made for dreaming. It was heavy with the subtle scent of violets; everywhere were masses of violets—sweet wood violets, and the pale, double Russian kind, and on the table, in large open gold and silver bowls.

Two footmen came in with the tea things. Tea in Mary's boudoir was quite an institution on these Winter afternoons, when Mrs. Armstrong and her daughter were at home. Very often friends looked in, but only quite intimate friends. Armstrong himself never took part in this feminine function. He was always either working or at his club.

The silver kettle was merrily singing on its stand when Elizabeth Armstrong came into the room. She was followed by a young man.

"I brought Laurie up, my dear," she said cheerily. "The poor boy has been working hard all the afternoon, and is simply dying for a cup of tea."

"I am not, indeed," said Mary, with one of her most charming smiles. She had jumped up on her mother's entrance and her face had lost its dreamy look and assumed an expression of gayety announced that it hardly seemed natural.

Now she busied herself in making the tea, for no servant was allowed in the room at this informal meal, and she chatted merrily the whole time.

Laurence Gunner responded readily to his cousin's invitation.

He was the son of Mrs. Armstrong's only brother, who was more than ten years her senior, and whom she believed to be long dead, although we have seen him, alive, cute or condemnation.

This brother had disappeared from Elizabeth's life many years ago. It was generally said that he had gone to Africa and died, but for five years previous to the time at which we take up the history of these people Laurence, his only son, a lonely boy, had lived at his birth, had suddenly appeared on the scene, and had been cared for by a distant relative of his mother, who had just died and left him destitute.

Elizabeth's kind heart had gone out to the lonely lad, and she had asked her husband to do something for him. Armstrong had granted this request in the most liberal and generous manner. He had sent the boy around the world with a first-class tutor, and Laurence, who was a very sharp youth, had returned transformed from a somewhat uncouth country lad into quite a presentable young man. A year of Boston, and no one would have known him from a smart young man about town, handsome of face, immaculate of dress, and with a certain easy charm of manner that won him friends wherever he went.

Armstrong had then made him his personal secretary, and he had lived with the family in that capacity now for close upon eighteen months.

That he was also living among these good people in another capacity, the disgraceful one of a spy, owing to the shameful and mysterious circumstances, we have already seen from what transpired in the private office of Fergus Braine between the great detective and the last father, his head clerk.

A pleasant silence fell upon the little group of three. It was Elizabeth who broke the silence.

"Are we going anywhere to-night, Mary?" she asked.

"There is Mrs. Leon Kirk's big ball," said Mary.

I mentioned by the two women. Laurie picked up his ears.

"I wish you wouldn't go there," said Mrs. Armstrong, decidedly.

"Mother, dear," said Mary gently, "I don't particularly want to go but I am afraid Mrs. Kirk would be offended, and—well, if we never went to people's houses—"

"I know what you mean, Mary," said Elizabeth, sighing. "Mrs. Kirk is a very great lady and can afford to behave as she pleases. All the same, nothing on earth could make me approve of her conduct, or countenance it, and I can't see why your father that I would never allow her to enter my house, except under the strongest protest. However, these are not things to discuss with a girl like you."

"I'm afraid we'll have to go, mother," said Mary, "although I thoroughly agree with you. It seems to me," she added, with a sigh, "that the world is all wrong."

They seemed to have forgotten the presence of the young man. A stranger, further look had come into his face as they spoke of the great lady who had chosen to advertise herself most conspicuously with a certain handsome young man, and whose husband was known to be furiously jealous. But he did not say a word, either in extenuation.

Just then there was a knock at the door, and the respectful voice of Mary's own footman Holland entered the room, unannounced. He looked extremely annoyed, and a little flushed, and more could have failed to see the glad and lovely light that flamed in Mary's eyes.

He was given tea, and there was a little general conversation, and then Laurie excused himself, and hastily afterward Mrs. Armstrong said that she must write some letters before she dressed, and left the lovers together.

Immediately they were alone Stephen turned to Mary, with an eager light in his eyes.

"Mary, I have good news," he said, with a thrill of joy and rapture in his voice. "I have just been with your father. He has withdrawn all his objections. We may be married at once, as soon as you can be ready. Oh, Mary, my love, say that you are glad!"

She flushed rosily, and put her hand in his.

"Oh, Stephen!" she murmured. "Yes, of course I am glad."

"Mary," he went on passionately, "I know that we have not been happy lately. I have seen it. Others—those who hate me—have put suspicions of me into your mind."

"Stephen," she interrupted, with loying indignation, "I have never harbored a single thought of you that was not full of perfect trust. I will make you happy."

"I know, darling, I know," and I thank you on my knees for your beautiful trust. And, before Heaven, I will make you happy." The s was something fierce in the intensity of his passion. "I will make you happier than ever woman has been before. And, when you are ever mine, I will have the power to come between us."

"No one has ever had it," she murmured. "But Stephen, you must beware of your enemies. Mercer Bach is your enemy. He hates you!"

"Because he has dared to raise his eyes to you, my queen."

"I hate him!" she said with passion.

"Let us forget him!" Stephen exclaimed. "We cannot think of our enemies to-day. To-day we are happy; we have each other."

He came nearer to her and took both her hands in his. "Don't make it long, Mary," he whispered. "It rests with you. A fortnight, not more."

"Oh, I shall have to hurry everybody up," she said, with a lovely smile and a blush that made him suddenly clasp her in his arms with a stifled cry of adoration. He was the man who had burnt his boats behind him. Now nothing mattered; he only wanted her, and he would have her.

"Say that you will marry me in a fortnight," he muttered hoarsely.

"Yes, Stephen."

"Say that you trust me—that you believe in me!"

"I trust you with all my heart," she said fervently. "I believe in you before everything on earth."

He clasped her still closer, and kissed her lovely face.

"My love," he murmured, rapturously, "my love—and soon my wife!"

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Great Man's Secret.

MANWHILE downstairs, in his study, Roger Armstrong sat thinking deeply. And he did not regret the thing he had done—the consent he had just given to the marriage of his daughter with Holland as soon as the necessary preparations could be finished.

Stephen had wrung this consent out of him by the vehemence of his pleading; but, now that he thought it over, he was glad that he had given it.

As to that extraordinary communication that had informed him that Holland was not what he made himself out to be, he was beginning to think that a madman was responsible for the anonymous letter. It was too monstrous a thing to imagine that if a man in Holland's position were an impostor any living soul, possessing knowledge and proofs of that imposture would calmly allow him to continue in it and content himself with writing vague anonymous letters. It must undoubtedly have been some secret enemy of the young man who had written it in order to cause him annoyance and pain.

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

A Natty Shirt Waist for a Miss

No. 2718—The simplicity of this design would be one of the strongest points in its favor. The style is one universally becoming to the slender figure of a young girl, the wide plaits adding to produce the desired breadth across the chest and back. Pale gray French lawn is used for its present development, machine stitching supplying a stylish finish. The garment is fitted by shoulder and underarm seams, the fronts and backs having plaits near the armhole, while the waistline fulness is drawn into gathers to produce a slightly bloused effect. White linen turnover collars and cuffs and a narrow string or tie suffice for black, border's green or red, prove desirable additions. The fourteen year size requires two yards 36 inches wide.

Pattern No 2718 is cut in three sizes, from 12 to 16 years.

Send 10 cents to obtain this pattern, postpaid, and the size, name and address to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 2790, Boston, Mass.

WILL SEE STATUE POSING AT THE FRANKLIN SQUARE

YOUNG WOMAN WHO HAS DEVELOPED POSING

Young Women of the House Are to Give Entertainment to Aid Hospital.

An interesting and unique entertainment will be given to-night by the young women of the Franklin Square House for the benefit of the Craft Hospital Aid Association, founded February 6 to maintain the hospital at the house. The entertainment is under the direction of Miss M. Alice Gallagher, and the best talent among the young women of the house has been drawn upon in making up the program.

Statue posing by Miss Emily L. Anderson will be an attractive feature. Statue posing is an art in which Miss Anderson excels, and her originality developed phases of it have attracted attention in New York, Montreal and other cities.

Misses Alma Holbrook and Pauline Anderson, who will take part, are pianists of exceptional skill.

This unique hotel is the only one in the world that has a regularly equipped hospital department, where the physical welfare of the guests is looked after by resident physicians and nurses, entirely free of charge.

The hospital consists of several suites of rooms on the second floor of the building, and was established by the late Mrs. Samuel B. Craft and her son, General George T. Craft, in memory of the Rev. Samuel B. Craft.

CLEVER OPERA PUPILS PLEASE BIG AUDIENCE

LEADER BIMBONI HONORED

By Kent Perkins.

Before a large and highly pleased audience in the Boston Theatre yesterday the fifth performance of the Opera School of the New England Conservatory of Music was given yesterday afternoon with great success.

Portions of several well-known operas were presented with pupils of the school in the principal parts and, forming the choruses, while the orchestra was made up of Conservatory students and members of the Symphony Orchestra.

Oreste Bimboni, director of the school, conducted and shared richly in the honors that were heaped on all who took part in the performances. Mr. Bimboni and his pupils merited the hearty plaudits that greeted their efforts and they deserve warm congratulations for the excellence of the whole performance and the high state of dramatic and musical proficiency displayed.

The operas represented and the chief actors were: Judgment scene from act IV. of "Aida," Mrs. Ray F. Stinehill, Franklin L. Wood and chorus; invocation and trio from act I. of "Un Ballo in Maschera" and aria, duet, trio and finale from act II., the same opera, Mrs. Jean L. Sherburne, Miss Mabel Stanaway, Elisha F. Perry, Robert A. Seaman, John J. Mogan, Wood and chorus; fountain scene and duet from Bimboni's pastoral, "Haidee," Miss Sarah F. Fisher and Mr. Mogan; part of act III. of "Carmen," Mrs. Martha Richardson, Miss Edna Sheehy, Messrs. Ray Finel, Sherman, Storer, Wood and chorus; bells duet from Donizetti's "Lucia di Monetari," Miss Margaret Wither and Mr. Mogan; act IV. of "Carmen," Mrs. Richardson, Miss Sheehy, Messrs. Finel, Seaman and chorus.

To criticise the actors from the Opera School as if they were professional singers would be manifestly unfair. Their lack of experience and the training that comes from the hard knocks of actual stage work should be kept constantly in view. The young actors showed earnestness, sincerity, careful and skilled training so far as school instruction can go, and great natural ability. In fact, some of them exhibited vocal and dramatic talents that are not often exceeded on the professional stage.

Enthusiastic applause, numerous curtain calls and an abundance of floral tributes marked the performances. A huge wreath was sent down to Conductor Bimboni, and the audience would not be satisfied after the extract from his own opera "Dante" was given till he had appeared on the stage with Miss Fisher for the duet.

The singing of Miss Fisher in this scene and those of Miss Stinehill in "Aida," Mrs. Sherburne in "Un Ballo" and Miss Sheehy in "Carmen" was particularly good and called out special marks of approval.

The skill of the director from a dramatic point of view was made by the expressive coloring of Miss Wither and Mr. Mogan in "Lucia di Monetari. They did their very comic work with infinite humor and self-possession and with a skill and dash in details that would be worthy of high-priced and famous professionals.

BOSTON MAN IS WED IN NASHUA

Special to the Boston American.

NASHUA, N. H., April 12.—Harry A. Gregg, a Boston clubman and youngest son of David A. Gregg, millionaire manufacturer of this city, and Margaret Pinettes Richardson, youngest daughter of Mrs. Cyrus Richardson, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational Church, Nashua, were married this afternoon in the presence of forty guests, including six Exeter University fellows of the groom. The wedding was performed on account of the recent death of the bride's father, Rev. Dr. Richardson, on a honeymoon trip to Atlantic City and after April 20 will be at home at Hollis Heights, Allston, Mass. Young Gregg was graduated from Exeter in 1902 and for two years was manager of Phillips Exeter football team. The bride is a graduate of Amherst College.

YALE PROFESSOR MADE DIRECTOR

The Congregational Education Society has appointed Professor Frank K. Sanders of Yale Divinity School to the Board of Directors. Rev. Dr. Sanders has been especially responsible for the Slavic Department of this society, although for the school year, Hastings Academy, situated in southern Oklahoma, has been placed on the list of academies.

The society has just received a legacy of $5,000 from the estate of Mrs. Mary E. Grimes of Dallas, Texas.

BOY, WHO WINS $10,000, PLANS HOW TO SPEND IT

Richard Patrick Dunn, the eleven-year-old son of Bridget and Patrick Dunn, of No. 11 Medford street, Charlestown, who yesterday received a scuttle of $10,000 for the loss of his left arm and fracture of his left leg, is a pupil at the Frothingham school in the fifth grade.

When he was called out by his teacher to see a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter he stepped briskly forward with a pleasant smile on his face. He was asked by the reporter how he intended to spend the money. For a moment he was wrapped in thought and then looking up he said:

"How am I going to spend the money? Well, in the first place we all need new suits, for you see I'm doesn't make much money, and there are four of us to keep. So let couldn't give us all the clothes he would have liked to.

"Next, Ma has not been feeling well this year, so I think that it will let her go away for a while this Summer and rest. Sister says that she will look after my brother and sister and me until she comes back.

"I am going to put the rest of the money in the bank while and the first chance I see I am going to buy a home for Ma and me. I don't like to see her lugs money to pay the rent now, and see that if I did mine we could save a lot of money. How'd you think of it?

"Now don't laugh, but if I tell you what I have always thought I should like to do you see, my sister, who is fifteen years old now, has to work in a box factory to help along the family. Sometimes she's sad and I always take a walk along Broadway and of course we call the little boxes candy boxes, and we have always said that if we ever got any money we would first buy a pony, a white one, too.

"After I buy the other things I am going to buy that white pony so I can take sister and Ma out riding Sundays. Won't that be great?"

MOTHER OF LOTTA DEAD

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Mrs. Mary Ashwell Crabtree, mother of Lotta Crabtree, the well known actress, is dead from general debility due to old age, at her home, No. 128 Fifty-ninth street. She was eighty-four years old.

Her son and daughter, John Aswell and Lotta, were with her when she died. Lotta having remained constantly with her mother throughout the recent decline in her health.

Mrs. Crabtree, who was Miss Ulrese was born in England. During her daughter's long stage career she served as her business manager. The burial will take place to-morrow in Woodlawn Cemetery.

ADDRESS MAKES RABBI RESIGN

PROVIDENCE, April 12.—Because he said that he would like to smoke hands with the assassin of the Grand Duke Sergius, Rabbi Gustav Hausmann, one of the most influential Jewish clergymen in Providence, has been compelled to leave his congregation.

Rabbi Hausmann was the pastor of the congregation of Israel and David, and his remarks excited the ire of some of the more conservative among his parishioners, who demanded his resignation. The rabbi has left the city to wait "till the excitement is over." He was the most popular Jewish preacher in Providence, and he is shining light of the reformed branch of the Jewish faith.

TABLE CHARGES AGAINST MAYOR

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, April 12.—Charges against Mayor Henry W. Eastham, alleging that he had used his office to further the interests of his hardware store in supplying the city with hardware supplies, will, it is now generally believed, be tabled and nothing further done regarding them. The charges were filed against the Mayor by Claude A. Magill, formerly deputy superintendent of streets. They are now in the hands of Special Attorney Peters for action. The general opinion is that the district attorney will quash the charges.

Mayor Eastham contends that goods were sold from his store to the city with full knowledge of the city solicitor. The Mayor says he has not transgressed the statutes and courts the fullest inquiry. He says the charges were brought because of spite on the part of the former street commissioner.

BIG MANILA RESERVATION

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Secretary Taft, Lieutenant General Chaffee and Quartermaster General Humphreys have discussed plans for the establishment of a military reservation and cantonment in Manila. NEW YORK, April 12.—Edward H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads, was dropped from the directorate of the Northern Securities Company at a stockholders' meeting in Jersey City to-day, which was dominated solely by Hill interests.

BATTLE ON FOR CIVIC CONTROL

LEOMINSTER, April 12.—Leominster votes at a special town meeting to be held in the Town Hall to-night on the question of municipal ownership of the local gas and electric light plants. It will require a two-thirds vote to authorize town purchase of the works, and hopes are high that the necessary number will be cast.

Public sentiment appears to be in favor of the move. Citizens, as a rule, share the opinion of former Representative Henry Cook, leader of the local municipal ownership movement, that if Leominster owns the plants it will save money and get an improved service.

The polls open at 8:30 o'clock. The plants it is proposed that the town shall buy are owned by the Leominster Gas Light Company, in which Keene, N. H., capital is heavily interested, and the Leominster Electric Light and Power Company, which is called a branch of a big Lynn concern. Great interest in public ownership exists here because of the fight made by the BOSTON AMERICAN for eight-cent gas.

BUYS FARM LIKE SCENE IN PLAY

NEW YORK, April 12.—That she might acquire property which held a scene to her sendding one in "The Little Minister," Maude Adams has purchased a farm at Lake Bonkonkonkpe, near her country estate.

When Miss Adams strolled through the farm of H. W. Smith, adjoining her own, she became impressed with a picturesque stretch of woodland and meadow, which is gene depicted by Barrie. She decided to buy the place, and enlisted the services of a friend, who began negotiations. The agent explained that he was buying it for a client, Maude Kiskadden, but the Bonkonkonx farmer did not know that he was dealing with Miss Adams. Everybody in the quiet Island village knows her by her professional name.

FRANCIS CABOT DIES AT HOME

Francis Cabot, a member of one of Boston's foremost families, is dead at his home in Brookline, at the age of eighty. He was prominent in business circles until his retirement in 1897, being treasurer of the Cabot Manufacturing Company, the Fisher Manufacturing Company, and a director of the Suffolk National Bank.

Mr. Cabot was born at Newton, June 16, 1825, and had lived in Brookline since 1856. He is survived by five daughters and three sons, Mrs. J. Putnam, Mrs. John Richardson, Mrs. Arthur Lyman, Mrs. Joseph Lee, Miss Amy Cabot, Francis Cabot of New York, Frederick Cabot and S. P. Cabot.

A Dollar's Worth Free To Any Rheumatic Sufferer

I ask no deposit—no reference—no security. There is nothing to risk—nothing to promise—nothing to pay, either now or later. Any Rheumatic sufferer who does not know my remedy can have a full dollar's worth free to try.

I willingly make this liberal offer because I know that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy may be relied upon ALWAYS to bring the utmost relief that medicine can. Years before I discovered this remedy, I studied the nature of Rheumatism. For Rheumatism is really Crystalized Poison!

Your blood is always full of poison—the poison you eat and drink and breathe into your system. It is the purpose of the blood to absorb and carry off this very poison. And the kidneys, which act as blood filters are expected to cleanse the blood and send it back through the system clean, separate every poison which, for its term, will eliminate.

But sometimes the kidneys fail. And some poison, from some other cause, the blood gets a taste of poison that they cannot absorb it all. Then at the start of Rheumatism. The poison settles in joints and crystallizes. The crystals look like little grains of sugar or of fine white sand. The blood carries them and they increase in size. Then, when it can carry them no longer it dep sits them in a joint—as a bone—anywhere.

The change in your leg—the dull ache in your arm or a runs day—these are the outward signs of the poison crystals. And the heated limbs and unspeakable anguish of the sufferer who has allowed his secretions to go uncorrected and unaided for some—these are the evidences of what Rheumatism, neglected, can do.

Rheumatism includes lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, gout—for all these are the results of rheumatic poison in the blood.

Plainly, the first thing to do is to remove the poison. But that is not enough. The FORMATION of the poison must be stopped, so that no more may have a chance to dissolve and eliminate the crystals which have already formed. Unless this is done there can be no cure—no permanent relief.

I searched the whole earth for a specific for Rheumatism—something that I or any physician could feel safe in prescribing—something that we could count on not only occasionally, but ALWAYS. For the ravages of Rheumatism are everywhere and genuine relief is rare.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy

I spent nearly years in experimenting before I felt satisfied that I had a certain remedy for this fiend disease—a remedy which would not only clear out the poison, but one which would stop its formation.

Certain Relief

The secret lay in a wonderful chemical I found in German root. I found this chemical. I knew that I could make a rheumatic cure the moment I got it—and I did. But—now this is how I made an announcement—before I was willing to put my name on it—I made more than 2,000 tests. And my failures were but 2 per cent.

This German chemical is not the only ingredient in Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure—but it made the remedy possible—made possible an achievement which I doubt not, could have been made in no other way.

The chemical was very expensive. The duty, too, was high. In all it cost me $4,000 per pound. But what is $4.00 per pound for a REAL remedy for the world's most painful disease—for a REAL relief from the greatest torture human beings know.

I don't mean that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure can make you well over night. Any drug that can possibly be that. But it will done from the blood the poison that causes pain and swelling—and then at the end of the pain and swelling—the end of the suffering, the end of Rheumatism. That is what I can afford to make this liberal offer—that is why I am afraid to spend the FIRST dollar that Rheumatic sufferers, the world over, may learn of my remedy.

Simply Write Me

The offer is open to everyone, everywhere, who has not tried my remedy. But you must write Me—for the free dollar package offer. I will send no order on your druggist which he will accept only as he would accept a dollar. He will hand you from his shelves a standard sized package and you will send him his pay. There are no conditions—no requirements. All that I ask you to do is to write—write today. I will send you my book on Rheumatism inside. It is free. It will help you to understand your case. Don't Judge Russia by Her Mangy Czar

Japan Is Not Thrashing the Russian People, She Is Beating a Worn-Out Nest of Cheap "Aristocrats"

The beating of Russia by Japan is a glorious thing for the world.

With Russia victorious, the liberty of Sweden and Norway would have been maintained only at the cost of desperate, long fighting, if at all. Sweden, understanding this, and warned by the Czar's perfidy in Finland, has multiplied the cost of her army by twenty within a very few years.

Russian victory in Japan would have meant eventually an attack upon the civilization of Western Europe. For a hundred years the settled and only half-secret policy of Russia has been expansion toward the West, with final achievement of that European domination tried in vain by the various Attilas of past times.

The world owes much to little Japan for the lesson she has taught. It is an old lesson. The young Greek nation taught it to Persia with her autocrat as bad as the Czar. And the Northern barbarians taught it to Rome when the will and courage of the Romans ceased to find national expression.

We taught the lesson to England with her fool George Third. Germany taught it to France when a decayed roue tried to play the Napoleon and misrepresented the French people under control of a Spanish petticoat.

This is the lesson that Russia is learning:

The Japanese are defeating—not the Russian people—but a collection of degraded, dissipated, vicious, cowardly, scrofulous and decayed would-be aristocrats.

The puny Czar and the half-civilized beasts that control him are forcing unfortunate peasants to go into battle against their will, and without decent direction, arms, provisions, or medical care.

Don't think that the Japanese are superior to the Russians because they beat them.

No man could fight well with a dead animal slung around his neck. Russia fights against her will with a dead thing called the Czar fastened to her—and with a lot of thievish maggots attacking her through the Czar.

The people of Russia are a very great people. The genius of their writers is more marked to-day than that of any other race—for they are coming up, where many others are going down.

Individually, her courage excels that of any other woman—for there is more in her country's misery to call it out.

The Russian nation will renew the love of liberty and stimulate the real rule of the people in this world as soon as it shall have thrown away the dead beast that hangs to it and educated a little more the great mass of the people.

Even the ignorant classes in Russia have shown wonderful qualities in this war. They have done all that brave men can do when they have no leadership. They have fought stubbornly and died without complaining. Give such men leaders and the inspiration of liberty and no force will resist them.

Fortunately, they cannot do their real work until liberty shall give them power—and, therefore, the Czar cannot use them to make himself master of the world—or even of the corner of it that he oppresses.

Deliberately and viciously the Russian peasants have been kept ignorant that they might the more easily be kept slaves.

When Madame Breshkovski, one of Russia's noblest and bravest victims, was found giving Bibles to the peasants, she was told that she had convicted herself of conspiring against the Czar.

"Nothing," said the magistrate, "could be more criminal than to put the Bible in their hands. Don't you know the New Testament is full of revolutionary doctrines and would make the peasants think themselves as good as anybody? Let them get their religion through our paid channels, in the right doses, with the right explanation."

Fortunately, thousands of educated Russian men and women have worked with splendid energy at the education of the peasants. They have scattered books and explained them.

And those masses not reached hitherto are reached by this war and by the Czar's brutalities. They see the man, whom they worshipped as a god, beaten like a dog and hiding like a dog in his royal kennel, while his soldiers are butchered in hundreds of thousands by bullets and disease, and his workmen are shot down because, still trusting, they tried to appeal to him.

The world owes a debt of gratitude to the Japanese nation, to those wonderful little brown men that walk up against bayonet and cannon and smile in hospital as legs and arms are cut off.

The Japanese are wonderfully brave, marvellously thorough—but their brains are not equal to the brain of the Aryan race, and never will be, unless race mixture shall eventually wipe out race differences and let only power dominate.

The Russian will, the Russian intellect, are not engaged in this war. It is war begun and managed by men unspeakably low and ignorant—the crowd of depraved tyrants called the Russian grand dukes. When the Russian people come to manage their own affairs another story will be told. May the beginning of it come soon.

The worthless Spanish wife of the worthless imitation Napoleon III. urged her husband into the war, being urged, in turn, by her religious advisers. She said, proudly: "Ce sera ma guerre"—this will be my war.

And it was her war, worthy of herself and her good-for-nothing husband. It was not the French nation against Prussia. It was a Spanish woman and a washed-out Napoleon, with a dyed goatee, trying to fight enthusiastic Germans, led by Bismarck and that great Dane, Von Moltke.

What chance had the French? Of what avail was the fact that, properly led, they are invincible, and ever have been? Suppose that, a few generations from now, this country should be ruled absolutely by the washed-out descendant of some one of our most worthless and dissipated would-be-aristocrats.

Suppose such a person, bred on monkey dinners and vegetable parties, let us say, controlled by sharpers and bad women, should plunge this nation into war—with rampant military thievery and incompetent leadership as complications—what chance should we have?

That is Russia's plight. The descendant of vice, murder and tyranny is trying to be a leader. Don't judge Russia by his failure.

The Moral Side of Food Adulteration

By Rev. Albert E. George

THE adulteration of food is a serious matter. Now and then it receives the enforcement of law, but the evil is too well fixed to get what it deserves. People need to be warned against the purchase of food that is charged with acids, used as preservatives, but which are undoubtedly very detrimental to digestion and health.

Moral principles should guide them in the selection of food. Any staple food that is adulterated should be shunned. It is an evil lurking in a large proportion of canned goods.

Even canned Boston baked beans are trifled with. A can of this reached North Carolina a short time ago, and it was pronounced by the chemist to be 100 per cent. adulterated.

There is much of this canned evil going around. Catsup did not pass any sort of an examination. Out of thirty-six samples submitted to an unnamed authority one was found unadulterated, and thirty-five samples adulterated. You can put more evil undisguised in catsup than in anything else.

Out of fifty-five samples of tomatoes twenty were found all right and thirty-five adulterated. Out of twenty-two samples of vinegar nine were found correct and thirteen adulterated.

Look out for jellies. They need watching. Sauces that look toothsome were found to be 86 per cent. adulterated and so on.

As people are inclined to use beer and other alcoholic drinks, they should demand the best. Twenty-seven samples of the thirty-five submitted were adulterated.

What does this all mean.

It means we do not know what we are eating or drinking. Professor H. A. Atwater of the Department of Agriculture says:

"The people of the United States are the most abundantly fed and the most wasteful."

We may eat too much, but while we eat, let us strive to eat what is pure. It is a moral question. We cannot be too fastidious to-day over what we eat or drink.

Look at the concerns who are "manufacturing" with maple sugar, syrup and honey! You think you are getting the real article at times, when you are in reality getting cane sugar, glucose, etc. Vermont strives to protect her maple syrup industry by law, placing a fine of $50 and not more than $200 upon those who adulterate this and kindred products. This law went into operation in 1898. This year it is being carefully enforced.

While we eat, let us show a little of the moral sense. Morality cannot be limited to personal conduct. It has a broader and more practical turn. It must be kept at your finger tips to keep you thinking of the evil poked into your food by some unscrupulous dealer, as well as the evil simmering in your drink.

Boycott food or drink that has a lie in it. Eat less if need be, but know what you eat; it is the real thing.

Somebody says that nuts will form a staple article of diet of the rising generation. They have not yet been adulterated, as nature is too shrewd. However, keep the nuts out of cans and you avoid the trick in the trade.

People should be educated to demand pure, wholesome food. If we like to be humbugged, let us all be determined to draw the line where it deals directly with the health.

The Bohemians in America live on an average of eleven cents a day, and they do it because they buy the food in which there is the least waste and the most nourishment.

The Italians are conservative, sticking to the chestnuts, cheese, wine and macaroni of their own country. They have to pay for these, but they live and find nourishment on a fraction of what the American mechanic or laborer can. Nothing is too good for an American. But let every one have so much of a moral nature that he is willing to put a stop to this trickery in food and drink.

It is said you can play more tricks with eatables upon the average American than upon any other nationality. He eats everything and is akin to an ostrich.

Be this as it may. The time has come to sound a tocsin. He can eat all he pleases, but while he eats, make it possible for him to know what he is eating. Eliminate Belgian hare out of canned turkey, and do not put all veal into canned chicken.

For goodness's sake, let us not put all of our conscience in doing right, and trying to digest satanic influences in canned food, while we are doing it.

We do not care to be delirious over our food and drink, but we do care to get what we ordered, and lead "the simple life" by plain living and high thinking.

REV. ALBERT E. GEORGE.

Heard in the Hospitals

By W. J. Sullivan

TIME sends his bill, and I cannot dispute it.
Nature clamors loudly for her pay.
The storm has burst; I am too weak to breast it.
All time I've spent on pleasures of a day!

The songs are dead, and I cannot intone them.
Chants of sombre measure flout in air.
Wine, dance, have gone. Ah! would I could bemoan them!
Ah, would I thought the price I pay is fair!

Keep far from the fane of Folly,
Where the nymph is a lag in a year,
Where the siren strain that befuddles thy brain
Growls hoarse in thine hour of fear!
There is never a sup in Dame Folly's light cup
But holds for the future a tear!

Little Editorials from the People

WOULD GO BEYOND MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Until we come to see and believe that there is fundamental error in the structure of the present economical fabric, which wraps it binding influence around us, there can be but little improvement to be hoped for, municipal ownership or no municipal ownership.

When the majority of the people are willing to accept the truth that every person is entitled to the same rights and privileges as every other person, then we may hope for, yea, and enjoy better conditions.

For instance, you are in a good position, receiving a salary of say $5,000 per year; are you willing that your less fortunate neighbor should receive the same, notwithstanding the fact that he may not be as competent as you? Five thousand a year supports you and your family in a style that is comfortable, easy and elegant; now then, is it not mean, low, and bestial to deny the same conditions to your less fortunate brother.

Why should I receive all the good things and my brother receive none?

Is not the digging of the ditch as essential as the drawing of the plan. Because I work my brain and pen in the office am I so much superior to one who works with his strength and spade in the open, that I receive a compensation that supports me richly, while he barely gets enough to live on.

Are my children so much superior to his, that mine may be highly educated, while his may be sent early to the mill and factory?

Does it not seem reasonable that every man, in whatever capacity of work, is entitled, and ought to have, a compensation equal to the cost of a comfortable living and the proper education of his children. JOHN ALCOTT.

No. 151 Bloomingdale avenue, Chelsea.

BLAMES THE SYSTEM, NOT ROCKEFELLER

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The oil merchants who failed to go into the Rockefeller combine have, in my opinion, no one to blame for their financial ruin, which followed, but themselves. Business is done through competition, and the conflict must necessarily be sharp and fierce. Had not Rockefeller and his associates crushed their competitors they themselves would have been crushed.

Kick not, then, the few who survive because of their superior fitness, but rather against the system under which nearly all must enter and become more or less a part in order to exist. I believe in the people owning everything—the whole earth and everything on it and beneath it.
